Stufflebeam steps up as acting Farmington mayor

By JEFF LAMPE

For The Weekly Post

FARMINGTON – Moments after being approved as acting mayor Monday night, Kenn Stufflebeam was already saving the City of Farmington money.

After switching from the seat he had occupied as an alderman into the chair vacated by Kent Kowal at the last council meeting, Stufflebeam was presented with a name plate that read, "Kenn Stufflebeam Mayor."

It was the same name plate Stufflebeam used in his last stint as mayor, after which it wound up in his medicine cabinet for the past seven years.

City Administrator Rollen Wright estimated the savings of not making a new name plate at $26.

Stufflebeam

"This is karma," Stufflebeam said. "It's only right that I finish out what Kent started. He finished out what I started once upon a time."

Kowal announced he was resigning as mayor at the April 18 council meeting and his letter of resignation was officially accepted Monday.

Stufflebeam had initially expressed hesitancy about taking the mayoral position, which he had resigned from in June 2015.

But Stufflebeam said he was convinced to step forward after talking with fellow alderman Dave Rose, who he thought might take the position.

"He and I, after a discussion decided I was probably the right person to do it," Stufflebeam said. "I will be a placeholder for 12 months and hope that I can teach somebody here who is currently on the council the best way that city government works, because, as you know, it works different than the business world."

Stufflebeam will maintain his position as alderman and the mayoral position will be on the ballot for the April 2023 election. The new mayor also said he plans to appoint a replacement for Alderman David Black at the council's next meeting.

"Anybody interested, please call me," he said.

Shortly after he was approved

Hope lives in spring gardening

Bluebells blanket two sides of French Creek in places. Never mind that, in a few weeks, they will be replaced by a sea of stinging nettles. For now, the scene is one of beauty.

Similar spring glories abound, with plants of all sorts flowering and tractors turning our fine soil into a crumbly quilt of black and brown. So it goes in spring, a season of hope when many of us fill a primal urge by getting dirty while putting plants in the ground.

Mother's Day is usually a safe time to start planting. To help you, writer Ron Dieter discusses plants, tomatoes and more on Pages 9-12. As always, Dieter has helpful pointers for home gardeners.

Bluebells blanket the floor of a Knox County woodland.

As I've learned, planting at home is much less frustrating than at the farm, where rabbits, deer and raccoons menace everything. The little oak tree pictured above was first munched by deer last fall. Then a rabbit snipped it down almost to the ground. I left a stake marking the 2-inch stump on a whim.

The poor tree is not yet as tall as the clover surrounding it. But reddish oak leaves have emerged in the past week. There is hope. There always is in the spring.

Paint the town

Princeville considering plan to reimburse residents, business for painting projects

By NICK VLAHOS

For The Weekly Post

PRINCEVILLE – Residents and businesses in Princeville are being encouraged to paint the town. The town might pick up some of the tab.

Village officials plan to implement a paint-reimbursement program, part of an effort to promote local revitalization and beautification. Payments might be as much as $350, depending on where the paint is purchased.

"I thought this would be a way for the village to give back a little bit, but also for the residents to give back a little bit," said Dan Sullivan, the Princeville code-enforcement officer. "Some of our buildings, you can tell they need paint and they kind of look dilapidated."

Sullivan presented the paint plan Monday night during a Princeville Village Board meeting. It might take effect almost immediately, according to Village President Jeff Troutman.

"We've got some businesses that really could use it," Troutman said. "We've got some residences that could use it."

Under what Sullivan proposed, owners of residential and commercial properties in Princeville would receive a 50 percent reimbursement on exterior paint purchased at most retail outlets. Maximum reimbursement in those cases would be $250.

But if the paint is purchased in Princeville, the village would reimburse 75 percent, with a $350 upper limit. "You're encouraging people buying stuff here," Sullivan said.

According to Troutman, one business in Princeville sells

FARMINGTON: OK $15,000 for Yates City lights

 by a unanimous 4-0 vote, Stufflebeam led the council through several votes and actions.

The council followed up on a discussion at its last meeting with Jim Ralston of the Committee for Light Up Yates City. Ralston was seeking a donation toward the installation of lights at the ball diamond at Harvest Home Park in Yates City. The council voted Monday to give $15,000 toward the cause, which uses up the city's current American Rescue Plan funds. The council previously paid out $125,000 to local businesses and $11,000 of the ARP funds as bonuses to city employees.

Wright said ARP funds can be used for "public safety" and said he thought lights fit under that description.

Ralston said that the Farmington baseball program has more than 200 players signed up this year, including 63 youngsters who play t-ball at Harvest Home Park.

He said the Farmington High School girls softball program has also expressed interest in playing doubleheaders under the lights if they are installed.

Ralston estimates that with the donation from Farmington, his group has raised about $52,000 of an estimated $100,000 needed to install four 70-foot poles equipped with 24 stadium LED lighting heads.

"Our baseball program is growing again," Stufflebeam said, noting there are not enough fields in Farmington to accommodate the crowd. "It's one of the things we can do to keep our kids off the street and out of trouble."

The council also voted to spend $6,500 on a summer recreation program with the YMCA that was sidelined for two years during the pandemic.

The program will be held Tuesdays and Thursdays at Jacobs Park from the third week of June through the last week of July. The park concession stand will also be open during the program.

Update Your Voter Registration

Two weeks ago, all registered voters received a yellow voter registration card. If you have family members who received a card at your residence and they have since moved, they need to update their voter registration to reflect their new address. They need to call the Peoria County Board of Election Commissioners (PCBOEC) at 309-324-2300.

If you have a family member who has passed away, you will need to take a copy of their death certificate to the PCBOEC to have them removed. This isn't done automatically by the county.

Please do this by May 12, as the ballots are being finalized in preparation for the June 28 Primary Election.

Little lost calf presents a mystery

It's never good when both AJ and Matt come charging to the house midway through chores. AJ breathlessly asked me to hand him his flip cards. Matt stood decorously in the open doorway until I convinced him to step onto the porch, despite his muddy boots. This dismayed him far more than it did me.

Each index card in these two-ring books holds the lifetime history of a cow. She gets a new line each year where information about her calf is recorded. These books, collectively, go back over 40 years. AJ and Matt pored over first one, then another book, periodically "humming" and shaking their heads. When Matt looked up from the inconclusive search, he smiled ever so slightly and said by way of explanation, "We have an extra calf."

This was the morning after Easter and six births in 24 hours. They were seeking confirmation in those cards that one of those six cows might have had twins, a hereditary trait. They found no clues, even after going back two generations.

AJ goes out every night between 11 and midnight to check on the cows. I go out at first light in the morning. Matt gets here at 8 a.m. Something wasn't adding up.

On his late-night rounds, AJ had noticed a black cow with a partially white face in "the wandering stage." He tried to get her into the pen by the stanchions, but she wouldn't go. He decided to just leave that door open in the hopes that if she did need a private space to give birth, she would go in there and leave the rest of the barns for the others.

Early the next morning, he briefed me on the set up, reiterating that he had been unable to get 7035 to go into the stanchions but had left the door open. Out I went. As soon as I walked into the west barn, I heard the beautiful sound of a mama cow lowing softly to a calf as it noisily nursed for the first time. The sounds were coming from ... the stanchions.

There stood 7035 licking and cooing to a nursing baby, in the stanchions, with the door closed.

Somewhat baffled, I finished my rounds and felt all else was in order. It wasn't. I returned to the house and relayed my findings to AJ. The first time through he just looked at me quizzically. The second time through, he got his book. 7035 has a uniquely marked face. There was no doubt we were talking about the same cow. That she now had a calf was no surprise. That she was now in the stanchions with the door closed behind her was.

When Matt arrived, he immediately began reconnaissance to see what had happened overnight. He quickly discovered a small newborn calf tooling around with the cows in the maternity ward. None of them was paying any attention to it and none had given birth. We had a mystery worthy of a BritBox series.

Lacking evidence to the contrary, or to the affirmative, we made the assumption that 7035 had given birth to twins. We ushered the Little Lost Calf into the pen with her and the nursing calf. 7035 looked over her shoulder at us. "What the heck?" She sniffed LLC, but when it moved into position to nurse, she kicked at it. We decided to let her out for a drink and I went to the house to mix a bottle. When 7035 stepped out of the door from the stanchions, she saw the next-newest calf lying there in the back shed. She gave it a long look before sniffing it and then looking at us as if to say "Oh, no! Not another one!"

LLC drank the bottle like a champ. AJ and Matt were working their way through all the new pairs with a critical eye to the possibility this little heifer calf actually belonged to one of them. No plausible scenario presented itself.

Our best hypothesis is that 7035 had LLC in the back shed, licked it off and perhaps even nursed it a bit before feeling the pangs of the second twin's imminent birth. Instinctively walking about to promote the labor, she did at last walk through the open door into the stanchions. Once in that pen, she must have somehow bumped the door, causing it to shut.

Once the second calf was born, the now exhausted mom cleaned it up, and probably lay down to rest. Meanwhile, LLC was trotting about with the other still-pregnant cows, asking each in turn, "Are you my mother?" It may have even attempted to nurse. By the time Matt discovered it, it had acquired the smells of other cows, so when they put it in with 7035 she did not recognize it as her baby.

A week later, she still does not fully accept that she has two calves. As long as one of us stands beside her as they nurse, she tolerates it. But she does not groom it as she does the other, larger calf. We hope that with time will come acceptance. Until then, one of us will just have to hang out with the trio for meal-times in the barn. There are worse places to be.

Grilled Beef Tostadas

INGREDIENTS:

- 1 beef strip steak boneless, cut 3/4 inch thick (about 8 ounces)
- 1-1/4 cups salsa
- 4 small corn tortillas (5- to 6-inch diameter), toasted
- 1 cup refried beans
- 1 cup thinly sliced iceberg lettuce
- 1/4 cup crumbled Cotija cheese
- 1/4 cup diced red onion or pickled red onion

COOKING:

Place beef steak and 1/2 cup salsa in food-safe plastic bag; turn steak to coat. Close bag securely and marinate in refrigerator 1 hour.

Remove steak from marinade; discard marinade. Place steak on grid over medium, ash-covered coals. Grill, covered, 7-10 minutes (over medium heat on preheated gas grill, covered) for medium rare (145°F) to medium (160°F) doneness, turning occasionally.

Remove; let stand 5 minutes. Cut steaks lengthwise in thirds, then crosswise into 1/4-inch thick pieces. Spread each tortilla with 1/4 cup refried beans. Top with lettuce, beef and remaining 3/4 cup salsa. Sprinkle with cheese and onion.

Cattle never judged me, so I never judged them

Despite spending every day of my southern Illinois youth on what at the time was a very large dairy farm, I never really had a clue of what made one Holstein cow or calf better or worse than the next Holstein cow or calf.

Most of that inability lay in my complete disinterest to show any calf, heifer, or cow at the county 4-H fair. The reason was selfishly simple: Since the fair seemed to always be scheduled on the hottest, steamiest day of the summer, nothing – be it animal, vegetable or mineral – wanted to be there, so why should I ever want to be there?

That disinterest, however, didn't keep me from trying to join the county 4-H dairy judging team. In fact, it spurred me because the spring Saturday of the multi-county judging event to winnow the talent (and my oldest brother, Richard, was a true talent) from posers like me, it also promised lunch at the only McDonald's in southern Illinois.

What 11-year-old farm boy wouldn't have suffered three hours of manure-spattered cow-gazing to take advantage of that once-in-a-boyhood opportunity? And, yes, the first bite of my first-ever McDonald's French fry that day remains a knee-shaking memory.

But it also left me blissfully ignorant of what "confirmation" means in reference to any animal, where exactly I should set my gaze to examine a cow's "topline," or that "hock" was a noun referring to an animal's foot, not a verb suggesting a visit to a pawn shop.

My father, a lifelong dairy farmer, never offered one insight on evaluating cow flesh despite his annual purchase of 6 to 10 promising, pregnant heifers. One day he'd just be gone "to look for heifers" and the next day a straight bed truck would arrive to unload his purchases. All were black and white, all had four legs and four udders, and all were added to the herd without one word of explanation. (Richard would carefully eye all.)

My lack of judging interest, talent, or training, however, never kept me from picking favorites in the herd. One, which my brother, David, and I adored was, simply, "22," the number stamped on the brass tag hanging by a chain around her neck. We loved her not for her beauty or butter fat but because she was a barrel-bellied pet that we could climb over, under, and on anytime we wished. We could even lay on her broad back while she stood slowly chewing alfalfa hay in utter contentment. She was a perfect, silent friend.

Another animal, tagged 52, did have a name: Dyna. The name wasn't for anyone; it was the shortened version of her complete name, Dynamite, the insight you needed to milk her without losing your right arm. Dyna was the kickingest, most-cussed cow we ever had on the farm but she earned more than her keep so she remained – as did our bruised forearms and deflated egos.

Even the farm's longtime herdsman, Howard, the gentlest soul who ever walked into a milking parlor, disliked Dyna. And who could blame him; Dyna had two chances a day, six days every week to clip him. On the seventh, Howard healed.

My father wasn't sentimental about any cow, heifer, or dog on the farm. If it, as he often said about first-calf heifers, "Put more on her back than in the bucket," she got a quick ticket to one of our two basement freezers. If the monthly Dairy Herd Improvement Association (DHIA) records showed a cow's production slacking, sliding, or slowing, a cocked eye greeted her every trip into the parlor.

And he never forgot the slackers or sliders. If they took one more step in the wrong direction – didn't breed back, jumped a fence, or gave anyone a hard time in the parlor – they were on the next truck to the National Stockyards in East St. Louis, and, I later discovered to my horror, the nearest McDonald's.

PUBLIC RECORD

NOTE: Charges are merely an accusation. All suspects are presumed innocent until proven guilty in a court of law.

Alarm but no robbery at Elmwood Casey's

ELMWOOD – Despite initial appearances, the Casey's convenience store in Elmwood was not robbed last week.

About noon on April 27, Elmwood police officer Mike Darrah and a Peoria County Sheriff's deputy were dispatched to the store at 811 W. Main St. The hold-up alarm there had been triggered, according to an Elmwood police report.

When Darrah arrived at Casey's, he noticed three company trucks in the parking lot and employees working at the front door. A store manager said they were conducting an upgrade to the alarm system. The alarm went off by mistake, presumably.

The manager apologized for the false alarm, the report stated. The sheriff's deputy was told to disregard the alert.

Casey's home office in Iowa was aware the alarm system was supposed to be off and was to be contacted about the issue, the manager said.

Princeville bicyclist arrested for drunkenness

PRINCEVILLE – Drunken bicycling isn't a formal violation of the law. But in all but name, that's what authorities accused a Princeville man of doing last week.

Collin M. Hause, 24, was cited for being a pedestrian under the influence of alcohol and for obstructing police. Both allegations are connected to an incident about 7 p.m. April 23 in Princeville.

A Peoria County Sheriff's deputy was summoned to Casey's convenience store, 105 E. Spring St., where in the parking lot she observed a black-clad Hause fall off a bike. When the deputy approached Hause, he boarded the bike and headed north on a sidewalk along Santa Fe Avenue.

The deputy pulled her squad car, with emergency lights flashing, in front of Hause's path on the west sidewalk. But he rode off the sidewalk to the opposite side of the street and fell off the bike again, according to a police report.

Hause then left his bike and ran east through a lumber yard in the 600 block of N. Santa Fe Ave., where he tripped and fell. He told the deputy he was intoxicated and thought he would be arrested, thus he ran.

The report stated Hause was bleeding from his nose and mouth at that point.

The deputy took Hause into custody, after which paramedics arrived and transported him to UnityPoint Health-Methodist in Peoria. He was cited after he arrived at the hospital.

Hause said he had been drinking large amounts of alcohol all day, per the report. He is to appear May 25 in Peoria County Circuit Court.

Police reports

• BRIMFIELD – A neighbor of Heinz Bus Co., 326 N. Jefferson St., chased away a man who was attempting to enter a shed on that property about 11:30 p.m. April 20, according to a Peoria County sheriff's report. The man – who was about 5-feet, 10-inches tall and was wearing blue jeans and a dark hoodie – ran east from the scene after the neighbor yelled at him, the report stated. Deputies found no footprints, damage or anything displaced in the bus shed.

• PRINCEVILLE – Chase C. Hartley, 23, of Princeville was arrested Monday and accused of unlawful possession and distribution of a controlled substance, according to a Peoria County Sheriff's report.

• FARMINGTON – Police Chief Chris Darsham reported the following activity for his department in April: 269 business checks, 4,645 building checks, 4 crashes handled, 3 property crimes, 15 ordinance violations, 2 crimes against people, 10 miscellaneous, 49 traffic stops, 12 arrests, 20 reports completed, 308 total calls and 23 assists to other departments.

PRINCEVILLE: TIF money will pay for paint

paint: EB Buildings & Lumber Co., 610 N. Santa Fe Ave.

He suggested the paint plan is a new-and-improved partial repackaging of a longstanding village policy.

For local beautification, the board has budgeted about $50,000 in tax-increment-financing money, according to Troutman. He said it's unlikely as much as $5,000 ever has been disbursed in one year.

That latter amount, and perhaps more, might be dedicated toward the paint program.

"If the need arises, we could take $10,000," Troutman said. "It's already got $50,000 allocated for something. If we have to adjust where it goes, we can do that."

Board action isn't necessary to implement the program, according to Troutman. Formal applications might become available by June 1, although Troutman said tomorrow wouldn't be too soon for someone to apply.

Sullivan suggested the program is geared toward structures that otherwise might require his intervention. As he and Troutman see it, the less of that, the better.

"If we can focus on the businesses and residential properties beautifying themselves, that makes my job easier," Sullivan said. "But the village as a whole looks better, and it helps with sales tax as well."

Princeville hires 2 teachers at special meeting

By NICK VLAHOS

For The Weekly Post

PRINCEVILLE – The Midland school district’s loss is to be Princeville’s gain.

Cody Blunier and Bret Williams are to join the Princeville faculty for the 2022-23 academic year. The Princeville school board approved their hirings during a special meeting April 25.

According to Princeville Superintendent Shannon Duling, Blunier is to be an agriculture teacher and National FFA Organization adviser. Williams will teach high school social studies.

Both educators come to Princeville from Midland, based in the Marshall County village of Sparland.

Midland is the high school alumnus of Blunier. The 2011 graduate returned to Midland five years ago as an ag teacher and FFA adviser at Midland high and middle schools.

Blunier spent the 2016-17 academic year as a Eureka High School teacher and FFA sponsor. He is a graduate of Illinois Central College in East Peoria and Illinois State University in Normal. Blunier’s ISU degree, conferred in 2016, is in secondary agriculture education.

Williams was reared on a family farm near Princeville and graduated from high school there, according to his biography on the Midland website. He spent two years as a Prince-ville classroom aide following his 2011 graduation from Illinois College in Jacksonville. There, Williams received a degree in physical education and health.

At Midland since 2013, Williams has taught American and world history, civics and geography. For the past eight years, Williams also has been the Midland varsity and middle-school baseball coach.

Base salary for the new teachers is to be about $45,785 each, according to Duling. Blunier is to receive an FFA stipend and extra pay related to his ag responsibilities.

The board also accepted the resignation of teacher Jacob Meisner. Blunier is to assume Meisner’s duties.

Elmwood Historical Society to lead school tour

ELMWOOD – Members of the Elmwood Historical Society will lead a free tour through the high school on May 19 at 7 p.m. to commemorate the return of class composite pictures to school walls and changes at the school.

Graduating class pictures were taken down a few years ago while the building underwent various remodeling projects, but were put back on the walls last year after several community members asked that they be returned.

The tour will also highlight the many changes to the school building, which has seen a new junior high, a new entryway, concession stand and commons area and remodels to the gym and locker rooms – all in the past five years.

According to Mary Ann Hanlin of the historical society, this is also the 150th year since the first year of public school graduations in Elmwood.

The tour will be open to anyone interested.

The Historical Society also has monthly meetings in Elmwood on the last Tuesday of each month at 7 p.m. at the Diorama Museum Building at 102 E. Main St.

Growing flavorful tomatoes is all in the genes

By RON DIETER

For The Weekly Post

When I'm working the tomato patch, I often think of the song, "Homegrown Tomatoes," by Guy Clark. Part of it goes: "Plant 'em in the spring, eat 'em in the summer. All winter without 'em's a culinary bummer."

I can't argue with that.

Most of us abhor the taste of store-bought tomatoes because they simply don't have any. Even bright red ones are flavorless disappointments. Nevertheless, we buy those tasteless imposters because we long for the real thing. In fact we Americans buy 20 pounds of fresh tomatoes per capita every year.

There's really no excuse for the lack of flavor in store-bought tomatoes. Scientists discovered the genetic information needed to produce a tasty tomato years ago. They examined the genetics of over 750 wild and cultivated varieties and discovered a gene, TomLoxC. This gene is found in 90 percent of the tasty varieties growing wild in the tropics, but in less than 2 percent of the cultivated types.

There are seeds available for the few cultivated varieties with the TomLoxC gene. All are cherry tomatoes. 'Gardeners Delight', 'Galina', and 'Sugar Lump' are all said to carry the TomLoxC gene. There's also the familiar variety, 'Super Sweet 100', that most gardeners I know have tried at one time or another. We grow it every year and it is very sweet. However, I prefer another cherry tomato, 'Sungold', a golden yellow fruit that is even sweeter. I suspect it has that magic gene too.

While those little cherry-type tomatoes are great for salads, nothing beats a juicy hamburger covered with a big slice of tomato. I have always been partial to 'Big Beef' tomatoes for burgers, but I've come to prefer a slice of a large Roma-type tomato. They're meatier and less likely to make the bun soggy.

Tomatoes are one of the easiest garden vegetables to grow and give you the most bang for the buck. With just a little attention, they'll produce fruits until frost finishes them. Basically you dig a hole in a sunny spot, plant the tomato and keep it watered. But here are some details.

Plant your tomato plant deep. Some books tell you to lay a tall plant on its side in a trench, but that's baloney. Why would you want the root ball to be so close to the surface? If your plant is tall, just dig a deeper hole so the roots are down where the soil stays evenly moist. Additional roots will develop along the buried stem.

Mulch the soil around the plant with a good layer of compost, straw, or chopped leaves. Mulching helps keep the soil evenly moist. Uneven soil moisture can cause your tomatoes to crack.

Inconsistent soil moisture can also cause the fruits to soften and rot from the bottom up, a condition called blossom end rot. Watch closely and remove any diseased fruits immediately.

Removing the lower leaves of the plants and mulching helps prevent fungal diseases, such as blight, by preventing the soil from splashing up onto the foliage during summer rains.

The most productive tomato varieties are indeterminate types, which means the vine continues to grow longer and longer until frost kills the plant. A trellis or cage keeps the vines up off the ground for easier harvest and disease control. Set the cage or trellis in place right after you plant so that the vine can grow into it with your guidance.

I use a 10-foot piece of cattle fence panel as a trellis and it works great. It's 5 feet tall but I wish it was another foot or two taller. I can set five or six plants along the panel and it's easy to fasten the plants to the fence as they grow, using garden twine or Velcro garden tape.

Most indeterminate tomato vines will overwhelm the tomato cages you find at garden centers. A tall sturdy trellis or even a couple wooden poles will work.

Flavor meals with your own herbs

By U of I Extension
 Culinary herbs are a favorite of many gardeners. They are easy to grow as they require little care, have few insect and disease problems, and generally prefer moderate fertility levels. In addition, they add fragrance and beauty to the garden.

Many herbs such as lavender, sage, and purple basil, are very ornamental and combine nicely in flower or vegetable gardens.

“Now is the time to plan what herbs you will plant this spring,” says Jennifer Fishburn, University of Illinois Extension horticulture educator. “First consider what herbs you use in food dishes, then consider which herb plants will add texture, color, and fragrance to your garden.”

Herbs such as dill, cilantro, and basil are easy to grow from seed. Lavender, rosemary, sage, and thyme are easily grown from purchased plants.

“Mint and oregano are easy to divide, so ask a fellow gardener for a start of their plant,” Fishburn says.

Throughout the growing season, herbs do need some attention including weeding, watering and harvesting. Weeding takes persistence. If planted in a garden, most established herb plants don't need additional watering. However, when rainfall is less than 1 inch per week, additional moisture may be needed. The key is to avoid overwatering as herb plants do not like wet feet.

Harvesting of herbs can be done throughout the growing season. Throughout the summer, annual herbs grown for their leaves such as basil, summer savory, and sweet marjoram, should be cut back leaving about 6 inches of stem and leaves.

Dill and cilantro are annual herbs grown for both leaves and seeds. For a continual supply of fresh leaves, reseed every two weeks. If growing for seeds allow the plant to mature before harvesting. Collect seed heads as they turn a light brown. Place seed heads upside down in a paper bag and allow to dry for about two weeks.

Prune leafy perennial herbs such as sage, rosemary, thyme and oregano by removing one-third of the top growth at a time. Avoid heavy prunings of perennial herbs after the beginning of September.

Add more color to your spring garden

By RON DIETER

For The Weekly Post

With the exception of a couple hot windy days, the spring weather has been perfect for our woodland garden. The cool gentle weather has prolonged the blossoms of hellebores, daffodils, tulips, scilla, grape hyacinth, and corydalis.

The hellebores, also known as lenten roses, were naturally the first to flower, with blooms appearing in early March. Their flowers will still be around after other spring flowers have faded.

The daffodils created a spectacular show this year. The first to bloom was the variety 'Jetfire', with bright yellow petals around an orange corona, the "trumpet." It's a prolific daffodil and I haven't divided ours since they were planted about 10 years ago.

Digging up, separating the bulbs and planting them in other areas has been on my to-do list for several years, but you know how it goes. This year I'm gonna get it done. Digging and replanting them all would be quite a project. There must be at least a couple thousand. I'll at least make a dent.

The other plants I've mentioned pretty much take care of themselves. Most will fade away by June.

The scilla will set seed and continue spreading across the garden. It's a weed I'm grateful for as it provides a carpet of blue below the yellow and white daffodils.

I appreciate our garden especially in spring. The flower show begins with the scilla, mostly blue, but also some patches of the white-flowered variety too. Bright pink blossoms of Corydalis 'Beth Evans' provide focal points here and there amid the other colors. Above the scilla and grape hyacinth, bright yellow daffodils burst into bloom, with white flowered ones close behind.

Later, as the scilla begin to fade the bright blue forget-me-not flowers of Brunnera appear, the tiny blue flowers with white centers hovering over rich deep green foliage. At the same time, the bleeding hearts come into flower. Our plants are several years old now and have become sizable shrubs.

We have a single pagoda dogwood that is just now beginning to leaf out, its immature bright yellow foliage resembling a flock of sulphur butterflies. Nearby the pink flowers of redbuds and white flowered serviceberries are in full bloom.

Along the paths in the garden various epimediums are in full flower too. Also known as barrenwort and fairy wings, epimedium foliage emerges in spring in shades of red and gold gradually turning to green and becoming thick and leather-like. Some varieties have veining and bronzing in the leaves. Small four-petaled flowers on wiry stems appear to hover over the plant, and depending on variety, the flowers may be pink, red, yellow or white.

Just in the last few days the Virginia bluebells have begun to bloom, the flowers in perfect harmony with the daffodils and yellow and pink epimediums. I'm making an effort to have bluebells elsewhere on the hillsides by moving a few plants there before they drop their seeds. The plants I moved last year have taken hold so I hope my luck continues.

In sync with the bluebells are the snowflakes with their little white bell-shaped flowers dangling above the foliage. They also multiply prolifically and I have several large clumps that need dividing.

The spring show will end when the bluebells and snowflakes fade away. Already the summer perennials like hosta, phlox, meadow rue, salvia and catmint are making their presence known.

Meanwhile, when the foliage of the daffodils and snowflakes turn brown it will be time to start digging and replanting.

Two great options for hanging baskets

By RON DIETER
 For The Weekly Post

Drive around a subdivision in late summer and, if you see any hanging baskets still on display, they'll often look pretty bedraggled. More than likely, you'll see a lot of empty hooks as the homeowners have mercifully taken down the deceased carcasses and buried them in the compost pile.

So what happened? Those baskets looked so beautiful in the garden center. Even the big box retailers' baskets were colorful, lush and vibrant, even though they were crammed together on the rail like passengers on a Japanese subway.

Well, first of all, those baskets you see at the garden center just emerged from the cozy environment of a greenhouse where the days are sunny and windless and watering occurs precisely on schedule.

Secondly, those colorful baskets are filled with plants that will look their best when you're shopping. They often don't hold up in the heat of summer. Plants such as petunia, nemesia, browallia and impatiens look great early but often wear out before the season is over.

This spring you'll see lots of baskets containing the latest sensation – petunias with flowers of purple, burgundy and pink, all speckled with spots of white. Growers tell me these plants look great in the spring, but have medium vigor and tend to lose their spots when hot weather arrives.

If you want a hanging basket that will look great all summer and will forgive you if you're a little late with the watering can,

I have two suggestions.

First is Dragon Wings begonia. You probably never thought of begonias as being tough, but Dragon Wings is one tough cookie. The plant got its name because somebody in the naming department thought that the leaves resembled the wings of a dragon.

Young Dragon Wings plants don't look like much when you buy them, most likely in a four or six-inch pot. Plant three in a 12-inch basket, four in a 14-inch basket. You can tuck in a couple trailing plants like vinca, plectranthus, ivy or lysmachia. Don't skimp on basket size. A larger basket is much easier to care for because it doesn't dry out as fast.

Dragon Wings begonias bear loose clusters of flowers, either red or pink, against glossy green leaves. They flower non-stop in sun or shade, makes no difference. They appreciate some fertilizer every few weeks. Neat-freaks might be bothered by the blossoms that fall as new ones develop.

Next up is Dipladenia, sometimes called Mandevilla. Every garden center will carry them and for good reason. Like Dragon Wings, these plants are hearty, easy to grow, and bloom all summer long.

Dipladenia has pointed glossy green leaves and large trumpet-shaped flowers. Flower color can be rich dark pink, bright light pink, dark red, or bright white. There's another variety that bears buttery yellow trumpets with orange throats, but it may be hard to find.

Back when I was in the greenhouse business, we sold lots of dipladenia baskets, especially to rural residents. I called them windproof baskets because they held up so well against summer "breezes."

Dipladenias do best with a dose of fertilizer every couple weeks and growers recommend allowing the soil to dry out slightly between waterings. That's not a problem for most of us.

The white-flowered variety is a good choice for the evening garden. If you enjoy your patio as the sun goes down, you'll like how the white flowers glow in the evening light.

Hanging baskets often give up the ghost when the gardener goes on vacation. If you're going to be away for a number of days, take your baskets down and place them in a shady spot out of the wind.

Billy Joe Sharp

BRIMFIELD – Billy Joe “Bill” Sharp, son of the late Hubert and Bead Wood Sharp was born Dec. 9, 1943, in Waterloo, Ala. He attended public schools in Lauderdale County and was a 1963 graduate of the Waterloo High School “Cougars.”

Sharp

He started his professional life by emigrating away from his sweet home Alabama to Peoria to follow his brother's dream of getting away. He worked as a professional seamless gutter installer at Sharp's Gutter Service for most of his working life, retiring in 2021.

Bill married his “soul-mate” Judith Anne Hayworth of Peoria, on June 13, 1985. They settled in Brimfield, where they built a life together surrounded by family and friends. He was a dedicated and loving family man who nurtured his many grandchildren and great-grandchildren.

Bill was an avid outdoorsman and lover of the flora and fauna of central Illinois. He was a renowned finder of morels, smoker of venison and catcher of fish. He was also a world-famous squirrel whisperer. Bill was an avid golfer and a member of the hole-in-one club at Oak Run Golf Course in Dahinda.

Though an Illinois transplant, he never lost his southern accent and was often referred to as a “Hill-billy.” This Southern charm compelled him to be a friendly and outgoing person, eager to meet new people and strike up interesting conversations.

Bill was preceded in death by his parents, Hubert (Bead) Sharp of Waterloo, Ala.; and by other family members, Jack (Patricia) Sharp of Peoria; Coren (Thomas) South of Florence, Va.; (Grayford) Wallace of Cloverdale and William “Tiny” Sharp of Waterloo, all of Alabama.

His life will be forever cherished in the lives of his beloved bride Judith, his children, Greg (April) Sharp of Creve Coeur, Jeffery “Scott” (Tammie) Sharp of Princeville, Jeffrey (Amber) Smith of Elmwood, Ronald (Veda) Smith of Farmington, and his favorite, Jennifer (Will) Grady of Goodfield; one brother, William Charles Sharp of Waterloo; two sisters, Betty Arnold of Florence, all of Alabama and Sarah Smith of Roanoke, Va.; 12 grandchildren; 15 great-grandchildren; and many nieces and Jake McGarry was the successful pitcher in the nightcap. He fanned three and scattered four hits. Bryan Bertlshofer drove in a run.

Princeville

Princeville (3-19) split a Lincoln Trail doubleheader on the road on Monday vs. Stark County, losing the opener 15-1 and winning the nightcap by an efficient 10-0 mark.

IHSA seedings

The Brimfield-Elmwood baseball team has earned a top seed in its sub-sectional of the Class 2A Knoxville Sectional, where Farmington is No. 6.

In Class 1A, ROWVA-Williamsfield is seeded No. 7 in its sub-sectional of the Illinois Wesleyan Sectional, while Princeville is No. 8.

Regionals start May 16.

Giving up five in the second and nine in the third would seal it for the Princes in the opener. Conner Freres and Carter Stutzman had the only two hits for the Princes.

While Parker Dickinson gave five free passes in the second game, he allowed just two hits and recorded nine strikeouts. Dickinson also added two RBI in his effort. Gage DeVries had two hits, including a double and drove in three runs.

PHS dropped a 13-2 decision to Illini Bluffs in a non-conference contest last Friday at home. IB made it difficult for the hosts with nine in the first inning.

DeVries drove in both runs for the home team, while Freres collected the only hit. Ten runs were scored against Ted Fritzenmeier, but only three were earned. Kasey Juskiv threw one frame, allowing one earned run. J.T. Snyder tossed two innings, striking out three.

Farmington

Farmington (10-10) lost 8-2 at Macomb in a non-conference matchup on Monday.

“We have been tentative at the plate during [a] three-game skid,” Farmington coach Justin Begner said. “We have a few more games to get out of this funk before postseason play starts.”

The Farmers found themselves down 5-0 after two and weren’t able to get back. FHS had five team hits. Riley Embry had a double. Gage Renken collected an RBI.

Kane Fox tossed four innings and fanned two. Jace Crawford pitched two frames and struck out three.

FHS fell 12-5 at home to non-conference rival Peoria Christian on April 26. The game was tied 3-3 after three, but the visitors struck for four in the fourth and didn’t look back.

Kyle Litchfield and Austin Thompson struggled on the mound against the Crusaders. Lane Wheelwright had two hits, which included a triple. Renken and Ethan Evans each had one hit.

Speed week

Track records fall as weather improves

By JEFF LAMPE

For The Weekly Post

Speed replaced shivering for track athletes last Friday. In a season of cold, wet weather and cancellations, records finally started falling with alacrity one the weather turned decent.

Elmwood-Brimfield posted four school records Friday at Eureka's Roger Washburn Invite.

Nine meet records fell at Wethersfield's Titan Track & Field Coed Invitational, where Brianna Brodie also set a Princeville discus record.

And plenty of performers posted personal records.

Speed week came just in time, incidentally, with girls sectionals just one week away and the local boys sectional May 20. E-

B, Princeville and ROWVA-Williamsfield girls will compete at Aledo on May 12 while Farmington is at El Paso. Here's a look at last week.

Elmwood-Brimfield

Senior Thomas Harmon keeps slicing his time in the 800 and on Friday at Eureka, broke the school record in 1:56.20. His personal record bettered the 1:57.8 posted in 1985 by Jeff Kalteux.

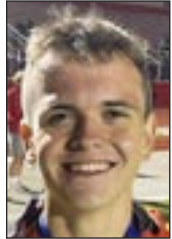

According to athleticnet.com, that's the top time in Class 1A so far this spring.

"For him to run a 1:56.2, he really just obliterated the record," Coach Gregg Meyers said. "To me, that's really impressive."

Harmon capped that with a win Saturday in the mile at the Morton Distance Gala. Harmon ran a personal record of 4:27.32 to beat senior Owen Dare of Olympia.

"He had a pretty good week," Meyers quipped.

Not far back from Har-

Harmon

mon in a solid field at Eureka was second-place sophomore teammate Isaiah Hill (1:59.25), who also had a personal record. Hills was 15th in the mile at Morton (4:51.62).

The other record for the fourth-place boys team was the 4x200 relay of Aiden Frail, Gavin Buhl, Brayden Lehman and Johnny York, which was second to El Paso-Gridley in 1:34.4. The same quartet last year tied the school best of 1:35.2 posted in 2012 by Collin Reicheneker, Joey DePalma, Nathan Ingersoll and Isaac Ramsay.

Johnny York also won the long jump with a p.r. of 20 feet, 1 inch and Trojans boys athletes posted eight other personal records.

"It's been nice we were able to get on the track and when we did, we did something with it even though it was still windy and less-than-ideal conditions," Meyers said.

The Elmwood girls team placed second to Eureka (126-84.5) and had several top finishes, highlighted by two record-breakers in the 300 hurdles. Freshman Mya Strahm won in 47.69

Pitcher boosts B-E to baseball victory

By PHIL JOHNSON

For The Weekly Post

Brimfield-Elmwood improved to 21-2 with a 6-2 Prairieland and ICAC decision over North Fulton last Friday at home.

Drew Bryant pitched 6.2 innings and struck out 11 to get the win and Michael Seibert finished the visitors off with another strikeout.

"Drew was the Drew of old. He pounded the zone with strikes," B-E coach Brandon Porter said. "We ran the bases well, including nine steals today. We played solid overall."

Frank Kelch batted 2-for-3 with an RBI and a two-bagger for the Indians. Jack Houlihan was 2-for-3 with an RBI. Landon Binder also drove in a run. Cam Blodgett and Jude Strahm each knocked a double in the win.

R-W softball sweeps 2 from Stark County

By NICK VLAHOS

For The Weekly Post

The ROWVA-Williamsfield softball team swept one official doubleheader and also won an unofficial one.

In two games Monday, R-W (13-11) defeated host Stark County 3-2 and 17-8. The visitors broke late ties in each.

Madison Nelson's single in the top of the seventh inning drove home Avery Rigg with the winning run in the first game. Lady Cougars pitcher Ava Landon set down the Stark County side in order in the bottom of the inning.

R-W led 2-0 before Stark County scored in the fourth and fifth. Nelson was 3-for-3 overall. Landon struck out six in a complete game.

A grand slam by Katalena Hunt broke a 6-6 tie
