NEW HOME FOR CAFE

Moving Uptown

Proprietor moving café to new spot in downtown Elmwood

By NICK VLAHOS

For The Weekly Post

ELMWOOD – Cory Jones has a simple reason why he plans to move his restaurant from one Elmwood location to another.

"I want to be able to be more of an owner and less of a line cook," the proprietor of Uptown Café said. Sometime in mid-to-late June, Uptown Café is to relocate – from 110 N. Magnolia St. to a vacant space at 118 E. Main St. Until about six months ago, the latter address was home of Cerno's Bar & Grill for almost three years.

Jones said he plans to add "& Grill" to the Uptown Café name at his eatery's new location. He also plans to add staff, which befits the bigger area in which the restaurant will operate.

Ideally, the extra help will give Jones a chance to get out of the kitchen more often and tend to other aspects of a business he's owned about five years.

According to Jones, he has only three kitchen workers to cover a seven-day-a-week cozy operation on Magnolia Street. A Mexican restaurant is to be the new tenant there.

"I don't have time to do the things an owner would do, like expand the company, hire people, fire

Farmington eyes lighting ordinance

By JEFF LAMPE

For The Weekly Post

FARMINGTON – The Farmington City Council is gearing up to consider another ordinance that could establish lighting rules for the city.

Council members were provided a preliminary copy of a possible ordinance at Monday's meeting and were told by Mayor Kenn Stufflebeam to come early for the June 20 meeting with questions.

The council did not approve two previous lighting ordinances when they were presented in 2019 and 2020 by City Manager Rollen Wright.

Wright said there are difficulties with such an ordinance because very few exist in Illinois outside of Chicago and its suburbs, and because there are "a lot" of gray areas on interpreting light readings.

The City has purchased a light meter to help gather data as it approaches the possible ordinance, which as written would make lights that exceed 1 foot-candle at the property line between 10 p.m. and dawn as a public nuisance.

"I really want us to do our due diligence on this," Stufflebeam said. "We've got our own problem with a parking lot neighbor, so we're working on that. Let's come back with some good questions."

"We have to come up with a standard that is accurate

Judge rules in favor of Schock, LaHood in suit

By BILL KNIGHT

For The Weekly Post

PEORIA – A legal case involving high-profile figures but receiving little coverage in six-plus years may have closed, depending on the outcome of a likely appeal. A motion for a summary judgment in the lawsuit alleging that the area's current and former Congressmen libeled Dick Burns was found in favor of Aaron Schock, Darin LaHood and the Peoria County Republican Central Committee on April 27 by Circuit Judge Michael Risinger.

Filed in October 2015, the suit claimed that a mass-mailing letter signed by then-Congressman Schock and then-state Sen. LaHood and sent to area homes days before the 2014 election was defamatory and hurt Burns' reputation and business by accusing him of misconduct.

The Peoria County GOP committee was named as a defendant because it paid for the letter.

Burns, a 75-year-old Democrat from Kickapoo, in 2014 was running for the Peoria County Board against 16th District incumbent Brad Harding. The two-page letter stated, "Dick Burns has been banned by the Illinois State Fair from showing hogs because he has been caught seriously cheating to win contests with large prizes."

Burns' attorney, Peoria lawyer Christopher Ryan, said the statements make "factual allegations which are false in their entirety. [They] cannot be characterized as opinions, hyperbole, or loose or figurative language, cannot reasonably people,” Jones said last week as he took a break from refurbishing his new digs.

RESTAURANT: Menu likely to expand eventually

“I’m the maintenance man, I’m the construction man, I’m the plumber – you name it,” he said. “The more (customers) I get through the door, the better off I am. Over there, I feel like we’re just trying to put out too many orders.”

Breakfast items fill one page of the current Uptown menu. Burgers, salads, catfish and fried chicken are among the non-breakfast fare.

Once the restaurant is ensconced on Main Street, the menu is likely to expand to include steaks, among other things. Smoked brisket is possible, according to Jones.

“I’ve got to play around with some of the equipment here, and I kind of want to just blow everybody’s mind,” he said about new entrees. “I don’t want to rush what I’m going to put out right away. I want to be able to build it.”

Jones intends to build space in the restaurant basement to play host to child-centric events, such as birthday parties. He suggested there isn’t adequate restaurant space in Elmwood for that now.

Upstairs is to include a “Hall of Heroes Room” that features photographs of Elmwood-area military veterans. The old Cerno’s bar area is to remain in place, although it might be a while before its full liquor capacity is filled. That includes a bank of beer taps.

Nautical items are to be evident inside the dining area; that isn’t surprising, given Jones’ love of fishing. Tributes to Elmwood history, including old maps mounted on the walls, also is a design theme.

The new Uptown has room for about 80 diners on its main floor, according to Jones. The current Uptown seats about 50. Overall, the new place has more than three times the square footage of the old.

Jones said he hoped the new Uptown would be open by now, but renovation has taken longer than expected, thanks to various water leaks and equipment replacement. Jones said he’s been receiving help from landlord Fred Paige and business associate Kirsten Seeley.

That assistance is necessary, in part, because Jones still is chief cook and bottle washer at his Magnolia Street address.

“The possibilities are endless. The sky’s the limit,” Jones said. “I’ve got all the faith in the world that it’s going to be successful.”

ceptable,” Wright said.

In other business, the council approved a recreation program that will be run by the Canton YMCA at Jacobs Park on Tuesdays and Thursdays from 9 a.m. to noon starting June 21. The program will last until July 28 and includes four field trips.

The council also gave tentative approval to sell some city-owned equipment that is no longer being used, or is out of date. That will include a Ford F-150 pickup, a Chevrolet 3/4-ton truck, two squad cars (an Impala and a Crown Victoria) and various other items.

“If there’s something we’re not going to use, we need to get rid of it,” Alderman Joey Boggs said.

During his report, Police Chief Chris Darsham told the council that his department had written numerous letters telling residents about tall grass and weeds on their properties. “Most people have cut the grass,” he said.

The council also approved $27,632.12 in TIF payments for 16 residential redevelopment projects, for which the residents are paying $84,453. Projects range from tree trimming to new roofs to an enclosed porch and a new front porch.

Last month the TIF paid out $40,000 to Farmington Forward for its redevelopment work on a downtown building.

Finally, the council voted unanimously to reappoint the following to local boards and commissions. Police Commissioner: Terry Dicks; Oak Ridge Cemetery: Tim Ulm; Planning Commission: Mike Cecil and Eric Colvin; Zoning Board of Appeals: Liz Johnson and Grant Pasley; Historical Commission: Dave Giagnoni, Carol Roberts, Norma Seaman, Herb Stufflebeam and Doug Wright; CEDC Commission: Kenn Stufflebeam, Keith Balagna, Zac Chatterton, Sherill Balagna, Judy Connor, Greg Culver, David Rose, Sarah Keefer and Scott Thomas.

An anonymous ode to strawberry success

We do not print anonymous letters to the editor. But when it comes to anonymous praise, what's the harm? And when that praise states what I was already thinking, but does it better, we can break the rules. So here is flowery praise from a rural Elmwood reader.

Jeff LAMPE

"Strawberry Festival 2022! Our

Lord provided excellent weather conditions for this event and if you were there, consider yourself fortunate. Those responsible for planning the event and all those who worked throughout the day are to be commended for the job they did in the planning and in the working.

"Every aspect of the event was awesome. It was good to see the happy crowd and all that was provided for one to participate in. There are so many to thank and so in avoiding the possibility of omitting someone I will say one BIG THANK YOU!

"And just think, this weekend the community will have the St. Jude Benefit in Yates City to enjoy."

• • •

It has been invigorating to see all the people coming out to events again. Maybe the only good thing about this pandemic was the reminder it gave of what we lost while penned up. ... Parting shot: Check back next week for a harrowing tale of algae growing in the gas tank.

New signs of the Apocalypse

On the very week the United States marked its one millionth Covid death and anxious American parents awaited a military airlift for baby formula, Davos Man, he of the pin-striped master-of-the-universe class, emerged from his bulletproof, bomb-proof office to report all was well in the world of intergalactic finance and handmade shoes.

Well, kinda' sorta' well.

There was, after all, a brutal war raging near the Swiss enclave of the World Economic Forum and most key global stock markets remain underwater for the year.

And, sure, China's economic growth this year is projected to be lower than America's for the first time since Mao's death in 1976 and U.S. inflation is, um, high.

So, yes, there's plenty to worry about, a Davos attendee told the Washington Post. "There is a real angst about globalization this year," said Jason Furman, an economist at Harvard University and former Obama adviser. "I mean, there's always angst about globalization, but the big question this year is: How do you get out of any of this stuff?"

"Stuff" being an academic term for war, famine and - unsaid, of course - hubris.

Take famine. The reporters and editorialists at the Washington Post ("A global famine looms..." April 30), The Guardian ("Apocalypse now?..." May 21), and the United Nations ("Lack of Grain Exports Driving Global Hunger to Famine Levels," May 19) believe famine will be the next stop on 2022's bumpy ride.

And it very well might - but not for the often-stated reasons.

The main cause, we're told, is Russia's invasion of Ukraine, two of the world's key grain-exporting countries. Indeed, notes economist and essayist Jennifer Clapp in a May 16 post on Civil Eats, 26 countries source over 50 percent of their wheat imports from the two warring nations.

That fact, however, points to an even larger - but rarely discussed - fact, according to the London School of Economics-trained Clapp: Only a handful of nations export food and even fewer international trading firms handle those exports. These firms, she explains, are the "ABCD" of the food trade: "Archer-Daniels Midland, Bunge, Cargill, and Dreyfus" who also "hold large reserves of grain, but do not publicly report them..."

Adding to that concentration is that three key crops - wheat "along with maize and rice... together provide almost half of the calories consumed around the world."

These three levels of continuing concentration - too few exportable food choices from too few international sources handled by too few, secretive merchandisers - all but guarantee any minor food access problem anywhere in the world soon becomes a major food access problem everywhere in the world.

And so it is, again, now in this "third food price crisis in 15 years," writes Clapp. Worse, like the previous two, the world is again promoting temporary solutions for these inherently long-term, multifaceted problems.

For example, on May 26, the U.S. Department of Agriculture (USDA) announced it will allow farmers to pull their Conservation Reserve Program (CRP) acres out early from their final year of contracts to plant additional crops (most likely winter wheat) to meet shortages caused by "Putin's unjustified invasion of Ukraine..."

Meanwhile, few in the Biden Administration, Congress, or farm policy circles mention an immediate source of exportable grain now being sent into the global atmosphere as tailpipe emissions: ethanol. In the 2021/22 corn marketing year, which ends Aug. 31, the U.S. will export 2.5 billion bu. of corn while it converts more than two times that amount, 5.4 billion bu., into ethanol.

That's a lot of calories (more than 4.3 trillion) that, even if just a small portion were used, could feed some of the estimated 815 million "food-deprived" people around the world this year instead of America's 275 million cars.

Even suggesting it, however, is farm policy heresy and no ag state politician worth their chair-polished blue suit would ever take that dive into elective oblivion. Besides, Davos Man, now that he's resurfaced, needs that ethanol to justify a carbon-hauling pipeline he wants to build.

To where? Back to 1994, presumably.

The Coveted Calf made for a noisy day

We have thousands of square feet of barn and lot space where our cows can calve. Despite that luxury, all too often two cows decide to give birth in the same square yard of real estate. That is, in fact, one reason we check on them so frequently during calving season.

However, sometimes they just lie down and have calves so efficiently that we are not aware of what is happening until after the fact. That is what occurred in this case.

On my early morning rounds I heard considerable commotion coming from the west side of the east barn. This is a spacious enough area, running the length of the barn, with a manger along the east side but otherwise open to the main part of the barn. It is a popular hangout for the pregnant cows as they wait to have calves because they can stretch their surprisingly long necks beyond the manger and snatch some hay from the bales stored in the mow.

It was not surprising, therefore, that there were several cows in that space when I opened the door to see what the heck was causing all the ruckus.

When a cow has a calf, she generally moos softly to it in an adoring and encouraging tone as she licks it vigorously to clean it up and stimulate its breathing and circulation.

That was not what I heard ... or saw. I saw three cows snitching hay, two slimy newborn calves, and two bellowing cows. The snitching cows were rapidly becoming uneasy with the situation and began to leave, albeit reluctantly, munching pilfered hay as they skulked out of the barn onto the cement of the feedlot.

By the time the last of the snitchers left, the situation at my end of the barn had escalated. I had a black calf with some white on its face, a big white calf, an orange cow and a very angry white cow. Both cows were bellowing loudly. Really loudly. So loudly that their tongues stuck out when they mooed. It was not a welcoming sound or sight for those two babies lying there.

The situation quickly deteriorated. The calves, tired of waiting to be licked, had gotten unsteadily to their feet. Both cows were claiming the smaller, livelier black calf. That was bad enough, but when the white calf made advances toward the white cow, she butted it. And this wasn't just a gentle butt suggesting it try elsewhere for its first meal. This was a butt hard enough to lift the calf off its feet.

My yelling did nothing to stop her from a second assault. I grabbed a pitchfork, the closest, longest, sturdiest thing I could find. Before she could launch a third attack I whacked her across the rump to get her attention. The calf was now in the far corner of the shed, not somewhere I wanted to go with this maniac of a cow in there.

The whack across the rump had reset her focus to the black calf, so I went for help. AJ was already on his way out, having realized I should have been back in the house many minutes ago. His analysis was the same as mine: Both cows wanted the black calf. Neither cow wanted the white calf. We continued to monitor the situation until Matt arrived.

We surmised that the two cows had plopped down tail to tail in the shed, delivered calves almost simultaneously, and then, because the smells got mixed up, they got confused as to who had whom. Perhaps the black calf was born first and both cows, one erroneously, had believed it was theirs. Perhaps both calves were born at the same moment, but the black calf, being smaller and more vigorous, drew the attention of both mothers. There was no way to know exactly what had happened.

Throughout the fracas, the orange cow had continued to attend to the black calf. She showed no interest in the white calf, but at least she did not go butt it. We had no idea which calf went with which cow. AJ went to the house to get his books and he and Matt looked through them to see which bull each cow had been bred by, whether either cow had had a black calf before, what the temperament of the cow had been historically, any kind of clue we could use to pair these four up correctly.

They found nothing.

Both cows were now nosing around The Coveted Calf. The big white calf was cowering dejectedly in the corner. We had to make a decision. Our fervent hope was that once we got the cows paired with one calf each, instinct would kick in and whichever cow got the white calf would remember it was, indeed, hers and all would be well. We had a 50-50 chance of getting it right.

We weighed our options one last time. Then Matt scooped The Coveted Calf into his arms and headed for the other barn. Both cows followed, but we cut the orange cow back to stay with the big white calf.

Did we get it right? We'll never know. We did the best we could using the information we had available, our intuition, and practical considerations. Both calves got moms; both cows got calves.

Sometimes the best you can do has to be good enough.

Give Medicare the right to negotiate drug prices

To the Editor:

Everything costs more these days. There are some months when I can barely afford to pay for my medicine, my utility bill and groceries. And I'm not the only one.

Congress is considering giving Medicare the power to negotiate for lower drug prices. This would lower costs for me, for you and for other seniors. Drug companies are spending millions to stop this plan so they can keep charging us the highest prices in the world.

Drug companies are getting rich while you and I are getting ripped off. But it doesn't have to be this way. Remember, Medicare spends billions on prescription drugs, yet it is prohibited from negotiating with drug companies to get lower prices. Right now, that could change if Congress hears from you.

I urge you to contact Senator Durbin and Senator Duckworth at 1-844-489-1336 and urge them to support allowing Medicare to negotiate drug prices now.

Thank you.

ARE CO₂ PIPELINES SAFE?

Pressurized CO₂ in pipelines is not like oil or gas. It doesn't spill, like oil. It doesn't smell, like gas. When ruptures occur, CO₂ travels along the ground, replacing all oxygen. Our emergency responders need to be prepared for suffocation victims and vehicles that cannot run.

My Place event set for Saturday

By JEFF LAMPE

For The Weekly Post

YATES CITY – With gas prices at a record high, food costs soaring and now electricity rates doubling for some, this is a tough climate in which to seek donations.

Jody McKinty understands that, which is one reason she and other organizers of Saturday's 19th annual My Place St. Jude Benefit have backed off on seeking donations for the popular live auction that starts at 5 p.m.

"We just didn't go ask a bunch of people this year because we know that prices are high for everybody," McKinty said.

Even so, there are plenty of enticing items at this year's auction and a full slate of other activities for the all-day event that has raised $1,287,387.74 for St. Jude since it began – including $130,248.97 last year.

The total raised has increased every year, though that will be a challenge this time, McKinty said.

The event starts with a breakfast of biscuits and gravy or pancakes from 7-11 a.m. Also starting at 7 a.m. is the 5K run, which opens for registration at 6:30 a.m. Registration for the fun walk is at 8:30 with that event starting at 9.

There are also benefit rides for motorcycles (10-11 a.m. sign-in, back by 4:30 p.m.), tractors (10-11 a.m. sign-in for 10- to 12-mile drive) and side-by-sides (10-11 a.m. sign-in, back by 4:30 p.m.).

Kids carnival rides are 10 a.m. to 2 p.m. and a bags tournament starts at noon, with sign-ins starting at 11.

The food tent opens at 11 a.m. and will be serving bratwursts, pork chops and more throughout the day.

The busy schedule culminates in the auction, handled by Folger's Auction, and the 8 p.m. drawing for the 50-50 pot.

Among the auction items are a kid's riding fire truck, bicycles, fire pits, Yeti coolers, grills, smokers, hand-made quilts, home-made pies and other items.

Donations are still being accepted. Call (309) 358-2003.

Brimfield clean-up days on June 18

By LORI HEROLD

For The Weekly Post

BRIMFIELD – There may be a reciprocal agreement coming between Princeville and Brimfield to honor each town's golf cart and ATV/UTV stickers. Announced at the Brimfield Village Board meeting on June 6 was a request from the Princeville Village Board to allow golf carts and UTVs to operate in both towns.

Brimfield's attorney will review the language in Princeville's ordinance to see what the parameters are. The board will discuss the ordinance at the next meeting.

Clean-up day for Brimfield residents is set for 8 a.m. to noon on Saturday, June 18. There will be three dumpsters. Village board members will be on hand during that time.

LAWSUIT: Judge: Ruling hinges on ‘actual malice’

be subjected to an innocent construction [and] they imply not only the potential of criminal conduct but also impropriety in Mr. Burns’ professional integrity in agriculture as well as in his professional reputation as a judge for cattle shows.”

Specifically, Burns, a long-time cattle judge, has never shown hogs, never cheated at the State Fair, which does not offer cash prizes, and is not banned. The rumor was never substantiated through contact with the State Fair.

According to sworn depositions, the claim stemmed from one article in a Quincy newspaper and blogs in the 2008 Congressional campaign between Schock and Colleen Callahan, who is married to Burns. That story was about Callahan opponents tying her to a 1998 4-H hog competition where their daughter’s hog was disqualified, and where the hog was found ineligible but was destroyed before a veterinarian could examine the animal. That led to a fair employee being terminated. (The article doesn’t mention Burns.)

Asked in 2018 where political consultant and one-time Vice Chair of the Peoria Republican committee Steve Shearer got information for the letter that, in 2019 he said under oath that he wrote, political consultant Karen Disharoon, who’s worked with Shearer, said, “I believe there was a newspaper article [and] he had documentation on his computer and that that computer had crashed.”

That same year, Katherine Coyle, the committee’s chair in 2014, said she was never shown the letter beforehand, never saw a draft and never authorized it. When she saw it afterward she said she considered it “very negative.”

The local GOP paid for 3,000 copies of the letter. Burns lost the race by 484 votes, election records show.

Further, the people LaHood said he asked about its accuracy were all Republican elected officials, supporters or consultants, and though they confirmed rumors, none subsequently testified they had personal knowledge about the allegations.

Over the years, the case was delayed by tardy responses, changes in attorneys and difficulties reaching Schock. However, a tentative settlement was “98 percent resolved” in 2020. Months later the deal collapsed, since defendants couldn’t agree on wording of a retraction and who would pay what percentage of a cash settlement, according to Burns’ attorney Ryan.

The defense cited 1964’s landmark “New York Times v. Sullivan” case, and some involved implied hearsay may be substituted for facts.

Former Republican state senator and city councilman Chuck Weaver – who with Peoria County Board member Brian Elsasser believed the claim was true, according to Disharoon – in sworn comments last year said he didn’t confirm the story and didn’t see it beforehand.

Weaver said, “There was a lot of talk. I do not have personal knowledge. I have an understanding of what other people have said.”

He added that he doubted some of the claims.

“I don’t believe they were banned,” he said.

As far as “Sullivan,” it established that for plaintiffs running for public office to prevail, they must not only prove the publication of a false defamatory statement but also must prove the statement was made with “actual malice.”

Steven Heyman, a First Amendment scholar, author and professor of law at Chicago-Kent College of Law School, said, “In libel, ‘malice’ doesn’t mean hostility or ill will. It means using something that’s knowingly false or something that a reasonable person would doubt under such circumstances.”

Defendants must show they had no reasons to doubt the truthfulness of the reports, and that there was no “reckless disregard for its falsity.”

LaHood’s lawyers in a Sept. 29 motion wrote, “LaHood investigated the matter and came to a good-faith belief that the statement in the letter was in fact true.”

Although Judge Risinger is a Republican (even declaring in court on Feb. 25, 2021, that “I am friends with Darin LaHood”), he assured the parties that his decision was not political.

“I can absolutely care less about politics and political party,” he said. “I don’t care about substantial truth. Actual malice is where I’m at.”

Before granting summary judgment in favor of all defendants, Risinger said, “LaHood and Schock, they relied on people that they knew had been political associates. Failure to investigate does not in and of itself equal malice. It’s a really good idea to do an investigation, but is it required? The way I read the law right now, no. It’s not required.”

The defendants at various times said they’d relied on input from people including Shearer, Elsasser, a Missouri cousin of Schock’s, and a few unnamed farmers – all Republicans, backers, or operatives.

LaHood in 2018 said, “I didn’t have specific information or details ... I didn’t have any independent knowledge of that. I go on my reliance of Steve Shearer and Brian Elsasser.”

Ryan said, “We will be appealing the order, in part. We did not agree with the Court findings on malice, particularly as to Shock and Shearer.”

Meanwhile, Burns testified that he’s lost tens of thousands of dollars in business, and more than one former customer said, “If a Congressman and Senator sign something, it has to be true.”

Spring bloomers outdid thimselves this year

By RON DIETER

For The Weekly Post

"Never yet was a spring-time, when the buds forgot to bloom."

— Margaret Elizabeth Sangster, poet.

For reasons that remain a mystery to me, spring-blooming shrubs and perennials outdid themselves this year, bursting into flower with wild enthusiasm. Peonies and iris, both reliable performers, were not shy about showing us their bloomers. And the glorious show has lasted for an unusually long time. I hope you noticed how exuberant the spring flowers were this year.

Although Mrs. Sangster notes that buds break every spring, some springs leave many buds unbroken. But not so with Spring 2022. I found myself constantly remarking how gorgeous this shrub or that plant looked in all its blooming glory, as though there was not a single bud left unbroken. Even the woodland phlox, Phlox divaricata, and trilliums were in especially fine fettle this year.

There's little doubt in my little mind that the long blooming period was due to the cool spring temperatures. Cool weather helps preserve the delicate petals of daffodils, bleeding hearts, tulips, and the little bulbs — grape hyacinth and scilla. But that doesn't explain the profusion of flowers.

At our place even the early-blooming small trees such as redbuds, magnolias and serviceberry were especially floriferous and for a longer time. Serviceberry, whose flowers last but minutes it seems, held petals for several days.

A rather uncommon ornamental flowering shrub, uncommon to me anyway, is the beauty bush, Kolkwitzia amabilis. Growing 10-12 feet tall with arching branches, it bears clusters of pink bell-shaped flowers in late spring. Our specimen was a gift from our Tennessee gardening friend, Jimmy Williams, who chopped out a hunk of his own shrub and gave it to us.

That was about 10 years ago. Since then our beauty bush has grown into a full-sized version of itself but its flowers have been scarce — until now. This year, for the first time, it is a real beauty, covered with blossoms.

So why did it decide to bloom this year? I really don't know for sure. The shrub was shaded for the first few years by a nearby oak tree that was slowly dying. The old tree gave up the ghost two years ago and never leafed out, exposing the beauty bush to more sunlight and tripping its flower trigger, I suspect.

Elsewhere in our garden are two cultivars of Carolina allspice, Calycanthus floridus, sometimes called sweetshrub. Carolina allspice grows 9 feet tall and 10 feet wide with 1- to 2-inch, magnolia-like flowers scattered over the shrub in late spring. The more vigorous of the two, C. 'Heritage Wine', has dark wine-red flowers while the other one, C. 'Venus' blooms creamy white. Both are flowering this year like never before and are quite striking.

In the lilac department however, I've had mixed results. Normally our lilacs are covered with blossoms in spring, but not this year. They suffered considerable dieback over the winter for some unknown reason and now look rather puny. A real disappointment. They'll get a ride on the chipper truck to make way for replacements.

Across the driveway however, is my Bloomerang lilac. It was covered with little lilac flowers, a real traffic stopper. It has bloomed meagerly each spring since I planted it seven or eight years ago. Apparently it was saving up its energy for a big show this year.

The Bloomerang lilac was introduced a few years back by Proven Winners, a company known for horticultural hyperbole. They named it such because "It's reblooming! It doesn't only bloom once in spring — it also blooms summer through fall."

Well, technically they're right, I suppose. My Bloomerang, once it got established, has bloomed fairly well in springtime, but fall flowers have been few and far between. I recall one fall season with just one lonely lilac on the bush.

If that bloomin' thing flowers this fall just half as well as it did this spring, and does a repeat performance next year, I just may get another one. We'll see.

My friend Jimmy says that when a plant is labeled "ever-blooming," it means that, on any given day, it's in flower somewhere in the world.

Farm Bureau collecting used oil June 16

PEORIA – The Peoria County Farm Bureau will collect used oil from Peoria County residents on Thursday, June 16, at the Farm Bureau building located at 1716 N. University Street in Peoria.

The collection is for one day only and will take place between 8 a.m. and 2 p.m. It will be free to all participants and no reservations are necessary.

Along with used engine oil, residents can bring diesel fuel, antifreeze and cooking oil. The used oil, diesel and antifreeze should be kept in separate, sealed containers.

GFL (Green For Life) Environmental in Peoria will provide a 4,500-gallon tanker truck to collect the oil. The collected used oil will be hauled to a re-refinery plant or to an asphalt plant to be processed and eventually reused.

Containers can be disposed on-site if product is brought in a container that is 5 gallons or less. All other larger-sized containers will need to stay with participants once they are emptied of oil, diesel, or antifreeze. Oil will be siphoned out of the larger containers into the tanker truck.

Vehicles bringing disposable product to the Peoria County Farm Bureau will be directed through the upper level parking lot and around the driveway on the west side of the building to the lower level parking lot where the product will be unloaded.

For more information contact the Peoria County Farm Bureau at (309) 686-7070 or visit the website www.peoriacountyfarmbureau.org.

Homefield Energy customers moving to Ameren

Community members who were previously under contract with Homefield Energy for their energy supply will be switched to Ameren supply through May 31, 2023. Residential and business customers should plan for noticeable increases to their energy bill.

"Ameren's supply rate is approximately $0.12 per kilowatt hour," states Patrick Ulrich, Peoria City Manager. "Homefield Energy customers had previously been paying approximately $0.05 per kilowatt hour. Community members should expect pricing increases not just during the summer months, but for the next year."

In April, customers were informed they would be on Ameren supply for at least June and July. Participating local governments in the aggregate learned they could not secure a contract for the remainder of the fiscal year, so customers will revert to Ameren supply for 12 months.

Customer bills vary depending on usage and if they have selected budget billing, among other things. A quick way to calculate the increased monthly bill is to multiply your current bill by two.

Customers are encouraged to examine their Ameren statements and to educate themselves on their consumption of energy, alerts on pricing, budget billing changes and information on assistance.

Residents should be aware they may be solicited by other energy suppliers.

"We urge all aggregate customers to be wary of any third-party offers," said Scott Sorrel, Peoria County Administrator. "Should the aggregate enter a supply contract in 2023, all current customers will automatically go onto the aggregate pricing."

For those struggling to pay their bill, find help by zip code at www.ameren.com/account/agency-finder. You can also call 2-1-1 or (309) 999-4029.

Program offers chance to dispose of ag pesticides

Peoria, Knox, Fulton and Stark counties will have disposal opportunities for unwanted agricultural pesticides through a statewide "Clean Sweep" program, State Senator Dave Koehler announced.

The collection is open to farmers, retired farmers, nursery owners, private pesticide applicators, structural pest control applicators and landowners who inherited unwanted agricultural pesticides.

Registration is required. Forms are available by calling the IDOA Pesticide Hotline at 1-800-641-3934, online at (www2.illinois.gov/sites/agr/Pesticides/Pages/Pesticide-Clean-Sweep-Program.aspx) or by visiting a local program sponsor:

- Fulton County Soil and Water Conservation District (SWCD), 13118 N. US Hwy. 24, Lewistown.
- Knox County SWCD, 233 S. Soangetaha Rd., Galesburg.
- Peoria County Farm Bureau, 1716 N. University St., Peoria.
- Stark County Farm Bureau, 7417b State Route 17, Toulon.

Completed forms should be sent to the Illinois Department of Agriculture by July 27. Letters can be addressed to: Clean Sweep Program, Illinois Department of Agriculture, State Fairgrounds, P.O. Box 19281, Springfield, IL, 62794.

Once forms are received, participants will be sent a reservation card with the date, time and location of their collection.

The Illinois Department of Agriculture has held 52 collection events since 1990 throughout the state.

VILLAGE OF PRINCEVILLE ANNUAL DRINKING WATER QUALITY REPORT FOR 2021

Annual Drinking Water Quality Report Princeville IL1430750

Annual Water Quality Report for the period of January 1 to December 31, 2021.

This report is intended to provide you with important information about your drinking water and the efforts made by the water system to provide safe drinking water. The source of drinking water used by Princeville is Ground Water.

For more information regarding this report, contact Chad Gardner, 309-385-4765.

Este informe contiene información muy importante sobre que usted bebe. Tradúzcalo o hable con alguien que lo entienda bien.

Source of Drinking Water

The sources of drinking water (both tap water and bottled water) include rivers, lakes, streams, ponds, reservoirs, springs, and wells. As water travels over the surface of the land or through the ground, it dissolves naturally-occurring minerals and, in some cases, radioactive material, and can pick up substances resulting from the presence of animals or from human activity.

Contaminants that may be present in source water include:

Microbial contaminants, such as viruses and bacteria, which may come from sewage treatment plants, septic systems, agricultural livestock operations and wildlife.

Inorganic contaminants, such as salts and metals, which can be naturally occurring or result from urban storm water runoff, industrial, or domestic wastewater discharges, oil and gas production, mining, or farming.

Pesticides and herbicides, which may come from a variety of sources such as agriculture, urban storm water runoff, and residential uses.

Organic chemical contaminants, including synthetic and volatile organic chemicals, which are by-products of industrial processes and petroleum production, and can also come from gas stations, urban storm water runoff, and septic systems.

Radioactive contaminants, which can be naturally occurring or be the result of oil and gas production and mining activities.

Drinking water, including bottled water, may reasonably be expected to contain at least small amounts of some contaminants. The presence of contaminants does not necessarily indicate that water poses a health risk. More information about contaminants and potential health effects can be obtained by calling the EPA's Safe Drinking Water Hotline at (800) 426-4791.

In order to ensure that tap water is safe to drink, EPA prescribes regulations which limit the amount of certain contaminants in water provided by public water systems. FDA regulations establish limits for contaminants in bottled water which must provide the same protection for public health.

Some people may be more vulnerable to contaminants in drinking water than the general population.

Immuno-compromised persons such as persons with cancer undergoing chemotherapy, persons who have undergone organ transplants, people with HIV/AIDS or other immune system disorders, some elderly and infants can be particularly at risk from infections. These people should seek advice about drinking water from their health care providers. EPA/CDC guidelines on appropriate means to lessen the risk of infection by Cryptosporidium and other microbial contaminants are available from the Safe Drinking Water Hotline (800) 426-4791.

If present, elevated levels of lead can cause serious health problems, especially for pregnant women and young children. Lead in drinking water is primarily from materials and components associated with service lines and home plumbing. We cannot control the variety of materials used in plumbing components. When your water has been sitting for several hours, you can minimize the potential for lead exposure by flushing your tap for 30 seconds to 2 minutes before using water for drinking or cooking. If you are concerned about lead in your water, you may wish to have your water tested. Information on lead in drinking water, testing methods and steps you can take to minimize exposure is available from the Safe Drinking Water Hotline or at <http://www.epa.gov/safewater/lead>.

Source Water Assessment

We want our valued customers to be informed about their water quality. If you would like to learn more, please feel welcome to attend any of our regularly scheduled meetings. The source water assessment for our supply has been completed by the Illinois EPA. If you would like a copy of this information, please stop by City Hall or call our water operator, 309-385-4765. To view a summary version of the completed Source Water Assessments, including: Importance of Source Water; Susceptibility to Contamination determination and documentation/recommendation of Source Water Protection Efforts, you may access the Illinois EPA website at <http://www.epa.state.il.us/cgi-bin/wp/swap-fact-sheets.pl>.

Source of Water Princeville: To determine Princeville's susceptibility to groundwater contamination, a Well Site Survey, published in 1989 by the Illinois EPA, and a Source Water Protection Plan were reviewed. During the survey of Princeville's source water protection area, Illinois EPA staff recorded fourteen potential sources of groundwater contamination that could pose a hazard to groundwater pumped by the Atlanta community water supply wells. One potential source, route, or possible problem site is located within the combined 200 foot minimum setback zones of wells #1 and #2. A total of ten potential sources or problem sites are located within the combined 1,000 foot survey radius of these wells. Four potential sources or problem sites are located within the 1,000 foot survey radius of well #3. These sites include two treated wood/lumber yards, a construction/demolition company, a mortuary, three below ground fuel storages, an auto repair shop, an auto body shop, two machine shops/sheds, two businesses that manufacture/process chemicals, and an above ground fuel storage. The Illinois EPA has determined that Princeville wells #1 and #2 are susceptible to IOC, VOC, and SOC contamination. Well #3 is not susceptible to IOC or SOC contamination. This determination is based on a number of criteria including monitoring conducted at the wells, monitoring conducted at the entry point in the distribution system, and the available hydrogeologic data to the wells.

2021 Regulated Contaminants Detectet

Lead and Copper

Definitions:

Action Level Goal (ALG): The level of a contaminant in drinking water below which there is no known or expected risk to health. ALG's allow for a margin of safety.

Action Level: The concentration of a contaminant which, if exceeded, triggers treatment or other requirements which a water system must follow.

Lead & Copper	Date Sampled	MCLG	Action Level (AL)	90th Percentile	# Sites Over (AL)	Units	Violation	Likely Source of Contaminants
Copper	08/14/2019	1.3	1.3	0.068	0	ppm	N	Erosion of natural deposits; Leaching from wood preservatives; Corrosion of household plumbing systems.

Water Quality Test Results

Definitions: The following tabs contain scientific terms and measures, some of which may require explanation.

Avg: Regulatory compliance with some MCLs are based on running annual average of monthly samples.

Level 1 assessment is a study of the water system to identify potential problems and determine (if possible) why total coliform bacteria have been found in our water system.

Level 2 Assessment: A Level 2 assessment is a very detailed study of the water system to identify potential problems and determine (if possible) why an E. coli MCL violation has occurred and/or why total coliform bacteria have been found in our water system on multiple occasions.

Maximum Contaminant Level or MCL: The highest level of a contaminant that is allowed in drinking water. MCLs are set as close to the MCLGs as feasible using the best available treatment technology.

Maximum Contaminant Level Goal or MCLG: The level of a contaminant in drinking water below which there is known or expected risk to health. MCLGs allow for a margin of safety.

Maximum residual disinfectant level or MRDL: The highest level of a disinfectant allowed in drinking water. There is convincing evidence that addition of a disinfectant is necessary for control of microbial contaminants.

Maximum residual disinfectant level goal or MRDLG: The level of a drinking water disinfectant below which there is no known or expected risk to health. MRDLGs do not reflect the benefits of the use of disinfectants to control microbial contaminants.

na; not applicable. mrem: millirems per year (a measure of radiation absorbed by the body).

ppb: micrograms per liter or parts per billion - or one ounce in 7,350,000 gallons of water.

ppm: milligrams per liter or parts per million - or one ounce in 7,350 gallons of water.

Treatment Technique or TT: A required process intended to reduce the level of a contaminant in drinking water.

Naturalist urges group, 'get these kids outside'

BRIMFIELD – Former teacher and Master Naturalist Julie Robinson remembers the days over a decade ago when she would walk into a classroom and hear students chattering. But in more recent years, the classrooms were quiet. Instead of chatter, she would see thumbs flying over phone screens.

In a presentation given to an audience at Brimfield Public Library on June 6, she showed a chart with a spike in teenage depression that coincided with the advent of cell phones. Her response? "We've got to get these kids outside!"

But being able to give students resources to explore the outdoors proved challenging. Combining her passions of love of learning with love of the outdoors, she decided to develop her own resource to make available to all who want to find outdoor public places to enjoy in Central Illinois.

After an information-gathering mission covering nine counties, she built localopal.org which stands for Local Outdoor Playing and Learning. The website is easily navigable by searching for areas by name, activity, map, county and town, and shows all pertinent information and amenities.

– Lori Herold

OK to provide, water and food for birds

SPRINGFIELD – Bird lovers may resume using backyard feeders and baths, wildlife biologists at the Illinois Department of Natural Resources (IDNR) advised.

IDNR originally recommended the use of bird feeders and bird baths be suspended through May 31 in response to the EA H5N1 strain of highly pathogenic avian influenza (HPAI) in Illinois.

With the annual spring migration of non-resident waterfowl and other migratory bird species complete, the risk of further disease outbreaks among wild bird populations has been minimized.

GALESBURG – Singer and songwriter Marc Janssen will return to the Carl Sandburg State Historic Site in Galesburg on Sunday, June 12, for the Sandburg Songbag Concert Series beginning at 2 p.m.

Brimfield has 4 baseball all-stars

By JEFF LAMPE

For The Weekly Post

Four Brimfield-Elmwood baseball players have been selected to play in the McDonald's All-Star Game on June 21 at 8 p.m. at Dozer Field in Peoria. The four are Austin Baysingar, Michael Seibert, Frank Kelch and Drew Bryant.

Also, last week in an article about the B-E baseball team's postseason play, Austin Baysingar was incorrectly identified. The newspaper erred. Austin Baysingar helped pitch B-E to its sectional final win over Sherrard, 6-3, and led all Indians pitchers with 44 innings in an 8-0 season during which he posted a 1.11 ERA and fanned 67 batters.

Other local players selected for the McDonald's All-Star game are senior outfielder Conner Freres and senior infielder Gage DeVries of Princeville, senior infielder Riley Embry and junior outfielder Gage Renken of Farmington, and ROWVA-Williamsfield seniors Logan Kuberski (pitcher) and Wyatt Self (infielder).

Worth noting is that Joliet Catholic, the team that beat Brimfield in the super-sectional, went on to win the Class 2A title over Richmond-Burton, 12-3.

• State trap – The Brimfield trap team had 18 students compete at the spring 2022 State Tournament on June 4 at Bunker Hill and Elmwood sent 13 shooters to the event.

Approximately 750 students from across Illinois shot 100 clay birds at state.

According to Brimfield Coach Scott Avery, several students had their personal best rounds. Tristen Seep (7th grader) shot a 79, Edith Barnewolt shot a
