Lawmakers pass Illinois budget some call balanced

By PETER HANCOCK Capitol News Illinois SPRINGFIELD - The 2023 spring legislative session came to an end in the early hours last Saturday after the Illinois House gave its approval to a $50.6 billion spending plan for the upcoming fiscal year that begins July 1.

The 73-38 party-line vote came around 2:30 a.m. after lengthy debate during which Democrats called the budget "balanced" and "compassionate" while Republicans claimed it masks hidden costs and fails to address the state's most urgent priorities.

"This budget reaffirms our shared commitment to fiscal responsibility while making transformative investments in the children and families of Illinois that will be felt for years to come," Gov. JB Pritzker said.

Lawmakers had to jump through some procedural hoops to meet constitutional requirements while still passing the bill in time to leave Springfield for the bulk of Memorial Day weekend. That's because the Illinois Constitution requires bills to be read into the record by title on three different days before a vote can be taken.

The final spending plan looked substantially like the one Pritzker outlined in his February budget proposal. It contains several new initiatives he asked for, including investments in pre-K through 12th grade education, child welfare, combating poverty and homelessness, and increasing state spending on higher education.

"Smart Start Illinois" is a multi-year plan that aims to make childcare and preschool available to every three- and four-year-old whose family wants those services. For the upcoming fiscal year, that includes $250 million to increase the number of preschool slots available, stabilize the early childhood workforce and expand the Early Intervention and Home Visiting programs.

The budget also includes Pritzker's "Home Illinois" initiative – an $85 million increase in funding to support homelessness prevention, affordable housing, outreach and other programs aimed at reducing homelessness.

It also includes a $100 million increase in funding for public universities and community colleges, along with a $100 million increase in Monetary Award Program financial aid grants for lowincome college students.

Pritzker has said that will effectively make a two-year community college education available tuition- and fee-free for every working-class student in Illinois. Continued on Page 2

Silvis woman found guilty of 2020 charges

By JOHN A. BALLENTINE

For The Prairie News TOULON - A 40-year-old Silvis woman was sentenced to 18 months in prison after finally appearing in Stark County Circuit Court on May 26 after numerous previous attempts to have her appear had failed. Rochelle

Sampson Lynn Sampson

was led into the courtroom by two Illinois Department of Corrections officers to through Stark County.

Delays in conducting court proceedings on these 2020 charges occurred time after time because of Sampson's inability to be present. She was incarcerated in Rock Island County Jail for charges filed there against her. In February, 2023 Sampson was sentenced to four years prison for methamphetamine possession.

"In part of the negotiated plea, the defendant has pleaded guilty to Count 1 [aggravated fleeing of police] a Class 4 felony. The state dismisses the remaining counts and traffic citations," Stark County State's Attorney Caroline Borden-Campion said in court. "She will be sentenced to a year and a half in the Illinois Department of Corrections." Continued on Page 2

BUDGET: Republicans worried about spending

Continued from Page 1 And it includes a $350 million increase in the Evidence Based Funding formula for K-12 education, the minimum amount called for under the law that lawmakers passed in 2018.

House Republicans announced late Friday that they would not provide any votes to pass the bill, calling it "one of the largest spends in Illinois history."

"Our shared priorities, surprisingly, were not included and our offers to work with Democrats were ignored," said House Republican Leader Tony McCombie, of Savanna. "We cannot trust the majority party with more money when all they offer is so little in return to tangible benefits for Illinois families."

Republicans cited several concerns with the budget, such as its continued funding of Medicaid-like health care for undocumented immigrants aged 42 and over, which has grown well past original projections. GOP members also objected Democrats' refusal to address the Jan. 1, 2024 sunset of a $75 million tax credit program that funds scholarships for private and religious schools.

Republicans also disapproved of the budget package's allowance for the automatic inflation-determined growth of lawmakers' base salary for next year from $85,000 to nearly $90,000 – a cost of living adjustment that McCombie argued violates the Illinois Constitution. They also criticized the budget's failure to address needed funding for pay raises for state workers whose union contracts are up for renewal in the upcoming fiscal year.

"In our eyes, this isn't a budget that provides for the future of Illinois," Rep. Norine Hammond, R-Macomb, the House Republicans' chief budget negotiator, said Friday afternoon ahead of the final vote.

But Democrats countered that the budgets they have pushed through since Pritzker became governor in 2019 have not only been balanced but have resulted in multiple credit upgrades from the three major rating agencies.

Passage of the budget allowed the House to adjourn its 2023 spring regular session.

According to legislative records, more than 560 bills passed both chambers and will eventually be sent to Pritzker's desk. Lawmakers are not scheduled to return to Springfield until their traditional two-week fall veto session.

Before the 2:30 a.m. vote on the spending plan, House members also voted on eight other billst. Those measures included a controversial bill that would give Ameren Illinois, the electric utility for the southern half of the state, the "right of first refusal" on the construction of transmission lines.

Another pair of bills that received only Democratic votes would give the state's Department of Insurance the power to review and reject rates, and the other would create a new state-based insurance marketplace.

A few late-night bills received unanimous votes in the House, including one that would create a tax credit program aimed at eventually attracting one of the six to 10 "hydrogen hubs" the federal government hopes to place around the U.S.

A bipartisan majority of House members also approved a previously experimental diversion program for first-time gun offenders, which had previously only been open to those under age 21.

Continued from Page 1 The incident occurred in December 2020 when Stark County Deputy Sheriff Dawson Nuding attempted to stop a suspicious vehicle. Nuding ran a temporary license tag on the vehicle and it came back as being a stolen vehicle.

Nuding turned on his emergency lights and the vehicle accelerated through Wyoming on Routes 17 and 91. The vehicle then traveled south out of Wyoming at a rate of speed up to 115 mph as the driver attempted to elude Nuding. The high-speed chase went east on the North Valley Highway to Tanner's Orchard on Route 40 where the vehicle turned to go north toward Bradford. The chase traveled through Bradford and went south to Castleton.

From there, the chase eventually ended in Henry, Marshall County when a "pit maneuver" was performed on the stolen vehicle. The driver of the vehicle was Sampson.

According to court testimony, Sampson will serve 18 months in IDOC for her Stark County conviction of aggravated fleeing, which is to be served after her Rock Island County four-year sentence in IDOC.

Sampson will receive day-for-day credit for her Stark County sentence that translates to approximately nine months prison, fined $75 and ordered to pay a $250 fee for DNA testing.

Capitol News Illinois SPRINGFIELD – In the final hours of their spring session last week, lawmakers approved a controversial measure that would give existing power companies in downstate Illinois, notably Ameren Illinois, the first crack at installing new transmission lines.

By ANDREW ADAMS

The measure applies to companies that already own or operate electric transmission lines under the purview of the Midcontinent Independent System Operator, or MISO, the grid operator for a wide swath of the Midwest, including much of downstate and parts of northwestern Illinois.

This "right of first refusal" would empower those companies to choose whether they want to build the new lines, replacing the current system of competitive bidding for such construction. This provision is temporary and would sunset at the end of 2024.

Critics of the proposal said that it would reduce competition, leading to higher costs for construction projects and ultimately higher costs to energy consumers. But proponents said that it will streamline the billions of dollars of construction planned for the coming years while creating union jobs for Illinoisans.

The proposal was in a broader piece of energy legislation, House Bill 3445. It passed in the Senate 41-9 with a single member voting "present" and in the House 63-32, with two "present" votes.

While it needs only a signature from Gov. JB Pritzker to become law, he vowed last week to veto the bill.

Utility companies granted new downstate lines

The legislature could override Pritzker's potential veto, but it would require three-fifths majorities in both chambers, a margin that it earned in the Senate, but not the House.

Bill sponsor Sen. Steve Stadelman, D-Loves Park, defended the proposal as a job-saving measure and emphasized it would be temporary.

The right of first refusal provision is supported by both Ameren Illinois and labor unions, such as IBEW Local 51, IBEW Local 134 and the Midwest region of Laborers' International Union.

The bill's house sponsor and the House Public Utilities Committee chair, Rep. Larry Walsh, D-Elwood, said that the proposal came to him from the union. Walsh said it would streamline expanding the grid.

Illinois Environmental Council Executive Director Jen Walling said the proposal will make it more difficult for the state to build out renewable energy resources.

Clean energy studies

In addition to the right of first refusal provisions, HB 3445 would direct the Illinois Power Agency to study several potential developments in the state's energy sector. That includes a potential offshore wind farm pilot program off the coast of Lake Michigan, dubbed the "Rust Belt to Green Belt" project.

A bill outlining a funding scheme for the project was put forward earlier in the year. It passed in the House but stalled when it arrived in the Senate

The bill would also require the IPA to study the implications a renewable credit system to support deploying grid-scale energy storage, a longtime goal of renewable energy advocates. The agency would also be required to study a proposed high-voltage electricity transmission project.

Nuclear construction

Lawmakers also approved a measure, Senate Bill 76, that would allow for the construction of "advanced" nuclear reactors in the state.

A state law dating back to the 1980s placed a moratorium on building those power plants until the federal government designates a repository for nuclear waste.

SB 76 was approved with bipartisan support earlier in May, passing on an 84-22 vote in the House and a 36-14 vote in the Senate.

The proposal drew criticism from both environmental groups like the Sierra Club and anti-nuclear advocates like David Kraft, the head of the Chicago-based Nuclear Energy Information Service.

Princeville library concerts in park start tonight

PRINCEVILLE - The Lillie M. Evans Library District will hold its free concert series on the first three Fridays in June, starting tonight, June 2.

This is the sixth year the library has provided these family-friendly concerts in Princeville's Stevens Square Park. Bring your own lawn chairs for your seating comfort or feel free to stay in your vehicle.

The Princeville-to-Peoria St. Jude Run will provide a water and soda concession (sponsored by the Princeville State Bank) in the square and local food vendors will provide food options nearby before and during the concerts. Food is available locally starting at 5 p.m. and the concerts will start at 7 p.m. Nightly specials at The Feed Store (116 E. Spring St.), High Voltage Taphouse (129 E. Main St.) and the Stomping Ground (211 E. Main St.) will be listed in the square each evening. Barry Cloyd will lead off the concert series. Cloyd is a Peoria-area musician and songwriter who has spent a lifetime creating a performance style that weaves the genres of blues, folk and Celtic music into a unique blend all his own. A strong vocalist and multiinstrumentalist as well as a storyteller, theatrical performer and historian, Cloyd delivers his music on a multitude of guitars and other stringed instruments, such as five-string banjo and mandolin.

On June 9, Central Illinois' River Valley Big Band will perform for a second year. Started in 2015 by Susie Dunnan and Ken Hess, the band has 18 members who play bigband favorites.

For the final concert, the Water Street Stompers perform June 16. The Water Street Stompers bring the spirit of Mardi Gras to Peoria with traditional New Orleans jazz. The music of Mardi Gras gathers influences from the sounds of the Caribbean, Africa, France and Spain, while incorporating native American chanting.

Stevens Square Park is located at West Evans Street and Illinois Route 91. In case of inclement weather, the concert will be moved to the Lillie M. Evans Library at 207 N. Walnut Ave. in Princeville.

USDA expects record crops in U.S., Brazil

The USDA projects some recordlarge crops in the U.S. and South America this year and into 2024.

If realized, ending stocks are expected to rise while crop prices could plummet in the coming year based on the Ag Department's May world ag supply and demand estimates.

USDA projects this year's corn crop, which U.S. farmers are still planting, could produce a record 15.3 billion bushels (up 10% from last year) with an average yield of 181.5 bushels per acre (up 8.2 bushels from last year).

Meanwhile, U.S. soybean production was pegged at 4.51 billion bushels this season, up 5% from last year.

The hefty crop production estimates pushed 2023-24 ending stocks estimates to 2.2 billion bushels for corn (up 805 million bushels from 2022-23) and 335 million bushels of beans, up 120 million bushels from the revised 2022-23 forecast. Ending stocks of wheat, though, could slip 11% to the lowest level in 16 years.

USDA's season-average price estimates reflected the bearishness of the big crops with 2023-24 projections at $4.80 per bushel for corn (down $1.80 from 2022/23), $12.10 for beans (down $2.10) and $8 for wheat, down 85 cents from last year's record.

Elsewhere, USDA pegged 2022-23 production in Brazil at a record 130 million metric tons (mmt) of corn, up 5 mmt from last month, and 155 mmt of beans, up 1 mmt.

Soy production in Brazil for 2023-24 could soar to a record 163 mmt, according to USDA.

Farm land prices could level off in near future

Farmland values could level off in the months ahead following an amazing run the past couple years.

John Moss, co-founder and owner of the Bloomington-based Loranda Group, believes farmland buyers are becoming more selective as farm returns tighten and interest rates rise.

"What I see is farmers and investors still have the ability to buy (farmland) but will be more selective in what they're trying to do," Moss told the RFD Radio Network.

"If you look at (commodity) prices, the futures market for corn six months ago was $1 higher than it is today and for soybeans it was about $1.40 (higher six months ago). There's going to be less net income and less money for farmers to spend, which is just the nature of the beast."

The value of Class A farmland in Illinois jumped 45% from 2021 to 2022, including a 16% increase last year, according to the Illinois Society of Professional Farm Managers and

Colorful echinacea causes a stir

By RON DIETER

For The Prairie News Sometime back around the turn of the century, I attended the annual symposium of the Perennial Plant Association in Chicago. One of the events on the program was a behind-the-scenes tour of the research gardens at the Chicago Botanic Garden (CBG).

As I approached the trial gardens, I saw a rather large crowd of PPA members gathered around a row of flowers. I could hear "oohs" and "ahhs" and excited chatter as I hustled over to see the cause of the commotion.

Keep in mind that this symposium is a gathering of plant nerds. We go nuts for anything botanically unusual. Causing the excitement and swooning was an orange-colored purple coneflower, Echinacea Orange Meadowbrite. A purple coneflower with orange blossoms was a unique sight for this horde of horticultural cognoscenti. Cameras clicked constantly.

Nobody had been doing much breeding work with coneflowers until Jim Ault, the CBG's director of ornamental plant research. headed up a breeding program crossing Echinacea purperea and other coneflower species. That's how Orange Meadowbrite came to be. It was the first of several coneflower cultivars developed at CBG.

Other breeders jumped on the bandwagon and soon many versions of Echinacea with flowers in shades of yellow, orange, red, apricot and white appeared in garden centers. In fact, the CBG is trialing more than 50 cultivars for garden worthiness.

Some of the early introductions weren't worth the pot they were planted in, winter survival a big problem. Today, a number of new coneflowers are worthy of a spot in the garden. One of Ault's introductions is a dwarf variety, Pixie Meadowbrite. It's 18 inches tall and produces pink flowers with wide petals that grow straight out, rather than drooping.

Another one to try is Echinacea 'Sunrise,' bred by Itsaul Nurseries. It's a cross between Echinacea purpurea and Echinacea paradoxa. Its flowers are buttery yellow, fading to white as they age. It's typically about 2 feet tall.

Echinacea 'Pica Bella' has dark stems topped with flowers with deep pink, tubular petals. It grows about 2 1/2 feet tall and has many blooms.

A few coneflower varieties have been around for years and are reliable performers in the garden. Echinacea 'Magnus' is a bright pink coneflower with broad flat flowers with dark center cones. Its sturdy stems grow 2-3 feet tall. It was Perennial Plant of the Year in 1998.

Echinacea 'White Swan' has also been in the trade for a long time. Many gardeners consider it the gold standard for white-flowered coneflowers. If it likes where you plant it, you'll have it for many seasons.

The straight species of coneflower, Echinacea purperea, is noted for its large purple daisy-like flowers, some of them 5 inches across. As the flowers fade, the petals fall away and the spiky centers, laden with seed, dry to a dark mahogany brown. The tall sturdy flower stems support the seedheads well into winter.

Echinacea thrives in most soil as long as it is well drained. It does best in full sun but will tolerate some afternoon shade. Coneflowers are not bothered by drought and hot humid weather. They do best when divided every four years or so. There's no need to deadhead, as goldfinches and other birds will eat the seeds during winter.

The purple coneflower is native to North American prairies. Native Americans used parts of the plant to treat cough, cold and flu. Echinacea supplements are sold over the counter today to treat the same ailments. Roots and other plant parts are used to make tablets, tinctures and ointments.

This report is intended to provide you with important information about your drinking water and the efforts made by the water system to provide safe drinking water.

If present, elevated levels of lead can cause serious health problems, especially for pregnant women and young children. Lead in drinking water is primarily from materials and components associated with service lines and home plumbing. We cannot control the variety of materials used in plumbing components. When your water has been sitting for several hours, you can minimize the potential for lead exposure by flushing your tap for 30 seconds to 2 minutes before using water for drinking or cooking. If you are concerned about lead in your water, you may wish to have your water tested. Information on lead in drinking water, testing methods, and steps you can take to minimize exposure is available from the Safe Drinking Water Hotline or at http://www.epa.gov/safewater/lead.

The sources of drinking water (both tap water and bottled water) include rivers, lakes, streams, ponds, reservoirs, springs, and wells. As water travels over the surface of the land or through the ground, it dissolves naturally-occurring minerals and, in some cases, radioactive material, and can pick up substances resulting from the presence of animals or from human activity.

Contaminants that may be present in source water include: •Microbial contaminants, such as viruses and bacteria, which may come from sewage treatment plants, septic systems, agricultural livestock operations and wildlife.

•Inorganic contaminants, such as salts and metals, which can be naturally occurring or result from urban storm water runoff, industrial, or domestic wastewater discharges, oil and gas production, mining, or farming.

 Pesticides and herbicides, which may come from a variety of sources such as agriculture, urban storm water runoff, and residential uses.

•Organic chemical contaminants, including synthetic and volatile

Action Level Goal (AGL): The level of a contaminant in drinking water below which there is no known or expected risk to health. ALG's allow for a margin of safety. If present, elevated levels of lead can cause serious health problems, especially for pregnant women and young children. Lead and Copper Definitions:

Definitions: The following tables contain scientific terms and measures, some of which may require explanation. Avg.: Regulatory compliance with some MCLs are based on running annual average of monthly samples. Level 1 Assessment: A Level 1 assessment is a study of the water system to identify potential problems and determine (if possible) why total coliform bacteria have been found in our water system. Level 2 Assessment: A level 2 assessment is a very detailed study of the water system to identify potential problems and determine (if possible) why an E. coli MCL violation has occurred and/or why total coliform bacteria have been found in our water system on multiple occassions. Maximum Contaminant Level or MCL: The highest level of a contaminant that is allowed in drinking water. MCLs are set as close to the Maximum Contaminant Level Goal as feasible using the best available treatment technology. Maximum Contaminant Level Goal or MCLG: The level of a contaminant in drinking water. There is convincing evidence that addition of a disinfectant is necessary for control of microbial contaminants. ppm: milligrams per liter or parts per million – or one ounce in 7,350 gallons of water. na: not applicable. Maximum residual disinfectant level goal or MRDLG: The level of a drinking water disinfectant below which there is no known or expected risk to health. MRDLGs do not reflect the benefits of the use of disinfectants to control microbial contaminants. na: not applicable. mrem: milligrams per liter or parts per million – or one ounce in 7,350 gallons of water.

organic chemicals, which are by-products of industrial processes and petroleum production, and can also come from gas stations, urban storm water runoff, and septic systems.

•Radioactive contaminants, which can be naturally occurring or be the result of oil and gas production and mining activities. Drinking water, including bottled water, may reasonably be expected to contain at least small amounts of some contaminants. The presence of contaminants does not necessarily indicate that water poses a health risk. More information about contaminants and potential health effects can be obtained by calling the EPA's Safe Drinking Water Hotline at (800) 426-4791.

Some people may be more vulnerable to contaminants in drinking water than the general population. Immuno-compromised persons such as persons with cancer undergoing chemotherapy, persons who have undergone organ transplants, people with HIV/AIDS or other immune system disorders, some elderly and infants can be particularly at risk from infections. These people should seek advice about drinking water from their health care providers. EPA/CDC guidelines on appropriate means to lessen the risk of infection by Cryptosporidium and other microbial contaminants are available from the Safe Drinking Water Hotline (800) 426-4791.

In order to ensure that tap water is safe to drink, EPA prescribes regulations which limit the amount of certain contaminants in water provided by public water systems. FDA regulations establish limits for contaminants in bottled water which must provide the same protection for public health.

Source Water Assessment

We want our valued customers to be informed about their water quality. If you would like to learn more, please feel welcome to attend any of our regularly scheduled meetings. The source water assessment for our supply has been completed by the Illinois EPA. If you would like a copy of this information, please stop by City Hall or call our water operator at (309) 695-4144. To view a summary version of the completed Source Water Assessments, including: Importance of Source Water; Susceptibility to Contamination Determination; and documentation/recommendation of Source Water Protection Efforts, you may access the Illinois EPA website at http://www.epa.state.il.us/cgi-bin-wp/swap-fact-sheets.pl. Regular scheduled Council meetings are on the Third Tuesday of each month and start at 6:00 p.m.

Based on information obtained in a Well Site Survey published in 1990 by the Illinois EPA, several potential sources are located within 1,000 feet of the wells. Based on information provided by Wyoming officials, the following changes have occurred: Farm and Home Service (map code 6203) is out of business; Moats Auto Sales/Auto Body (map code 6205) is out of business and used for storage; Wyoming Dry Cleaners (map code 6206) is closed and has been razed and is now fire department property; the antique and furniture business (map code 6207) is closed and used for storage; Wyoming Motors (map code 6204) is out of business and razed and a bank has been constructed on property; Breeze-Illinois Inc. (map code 6218) is closed and used for storage; and the feed lot (map code 6216) is closed and the property is used for construction equipment storage.

The Illinois EPA has determined that the Wyoming Community Water Supply's source water is not susceptible to contamination. This determination is based on a number of criteria including: monitoring conducted at the wells; monitoring conducted at the entry point to the distribution system; and available hydrogeologic data on the wells.

Furthermore, in anticipation of the U.S. EPA's proposed Ground Water Rule, the Illinois EPA has determined that the Wyoming Community Water Supply is not vulnerable to viral contamination. This determination is based on a number criteria including: monitoring conducted at the wells; monitoring conducted at the entry point to the distribution system; and available hydrogeologic data on the wells. Furthermore, in anticipation of the U.S. EPA's proposed Ground Water Rule, the Illinois EPA has determined that the Wyoming Community Water Supply is not vulnerable to viral contamination. This determination is based upon the evaluation of the following criteria during the Vulnerability Waiver Process: the community's wells are properly constructed with sound integrity and proper siting conditions; a hydraulic barrier exists which should prevent pathogen movement; all potential routes and sanitary defects have been mitigated such that the source water is adequately protected; monitoring data did not indicate a history of disease outbreak; and the sanitary survey of the water supply did not indicate a viral contamination threat. Because the community's wells are constructed in a confined aquifer, which should prevent the movement of pathogens into the wells, well hydraulics were not considered to be a significant factor in the susceptibility determination. Hence, well hydraulics were not evaluated for this system's ground water supply.

• Mercer Co. move -The merger of the Lincoln Trail Conference and Prairieland Conference for football starts this fall and will have one season without major changes, it appears.
