'Dahinda Days' event to feature native dancers, drummers

By JEFF LAMPE

For The Weekly Post DAHINDA – Rivers have long held an attraction for inhabitants of Illinois, including many who came centuries before white men settled the state.

One such place is Dahinda, the unincorporated Knox County hamlet nestled between the Spoon River and Court Creek.

"The present site of Dahinda was once an Indian village, and the poles of their wigwams stood there for years after the arrival of white settlers," says the 1899 "Historical Encyclopedia of Illinois and Knox County." "There are twenty-five or thirty mounds on the bluffs near by, which contain human bones and are presumably Indian graves."

Such history resonates with Andy Fritz, who this Saturday has organized a celebration of Dahinda's past. Native American drummers and dancers will be the main attraction for an event also featuring local vendors, Native American crafters, 18th century reenactors and possibly artifact collectors.

"I've been wanting to do this ever since we bought the store and renovated it in 2018," said Fritz, referring to the Dahinda General Store he has managed for the past five years. "I have old pictures on the wall (in the store), my family is all from Dahinda and I love the local history of the area."

Fritz said the event will be a multi-tribal gathering that is scheduled to include the Black Fox Singers from Galesburg and various other performers who help out at pow wows held across the country.

Fritz said he has been advised by volunteers from the Seven Circles Heritage Center in Edwards who are also expected to be in attendance on Saturday.

Dancers and drummers are scheduled to start around lunch and will continue into the early evening, Fritz said. There will also be teepees set up on the lot behind the general store, which stretches east to the Spoon River.

"They will be in authentic garb," Fritz said. "The overwhelming attraction is going to be the native American event." Vendors of various local-

IT RAIN

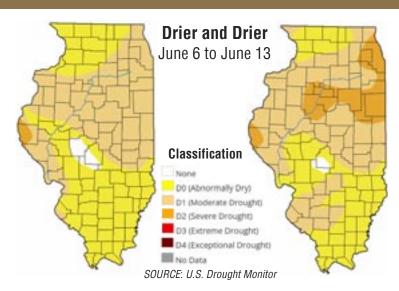

Drought intensifies in Illinois

By JEFF LAMPE

For The Weekly Post Somehow, much of the corn still looks decent. Not as tall as usual, but not as parched as it may soon appear if rain doesn't arrive soon in central Illinois.

Instead of a "flash drought," climatologists are now discussing just a drought. And it's getting worse.

According to the U.S. drought monitor, 65 percent of Illinois is in at least a moderate drought and 15 percent is in a severe drought - including Peoria County. And there's no expectation for rain until Sunday, when models show a slight chance for out area, according to Trent Ford, state climatologist.

"Looking out two weeks, things look more optimistic for rain," Ford said. "But I'm at the point where I'm kind of, 'Show me' before I'll believe it."

Ford said he anticipates there will be yield impacts for corn and soybeans, particularly in lighter soils.

"The crops on the heavy ground that covers most of central Illinois, that ground has been able to hold onto moisture down to about 10-12 inches," Ford said. "But on some of the lighter soils, we're likely seeing impacts there."

Ford said the main drought impact so far for agricultural producers is to pastures, which are in poor condition and have necessitated supplemental feeding of livestock, that is rare for June. Regrowth of hay crops has also been imited, according to Ford.

Princeville School Board reprimands art teacher

By NICK VLAHOS

For The Weekly Post PRINCEVILLE - The Princeville School Board has reprimanded an art teacher for an unspecified issue.

During its meeting June 13, the board approved what it called a notice to remedy regarding the unidentified teacher. School Superintendent Shannon Duling said he couldn't elaborate much more about the situation.

According to a staff directory on Princeville's school website, Tony Johnson teaches art in the junior high and high school and is the only person listed as an art teacher.

"Typically, a notice to remedy is if the board and administration are telling somebody that an action needs to be improved upon, nor can it happen again," Duling said. "It's a really, really strong warning."

The board voted after it met in executive session, which is closed to the public and lasted almost two hours. The art teacher's case appeared to be among at least three other personnel items discussed.

Earlier, in open session, Duling and board members said additional security for the district's bus fleet might entail lights. Or it might entail cages. Or lights and cages, perhaps.

Discussion continued, as it has for several months, regarding the best way to prevent thieves from stealing catalytic converters from buses. Converter thefts earlier this year prompted a probe into preventative options.

As of last week, Ameren Illinois had not responded to Duling's inquiry regarding a cost estimate for installation of se-

The 18th century reenactors will also camp out Friday night and be around Saturday to answer questions. There is plenty of history here on which to base answers.

"Several histories reference the fact that there were (Native American) paths in and out of Dahinda," Fritz said. "I even have a map of trails the Indians used to come in and out of Dahinda.

"And one of the last Indian encampments was just north of Dahinda in Persifer Township."

Fritz said local artifact collectors have found sharpening stones, arrowheads, axe heads and knives on bluffs around Dahinda.

Pinpointing specific tribes that lived in Dahinda is difficult, since there were likely several. Tribes most prominently mentioned are Sac and Fox and Potawatomi whose chief Shabbona (or Shaubena) reportedly offered to show a settler a silver mine in Persifer Township in the 1830s.

Even the town name has a historic connection. The name "Dahinda" is said to be a native word for bullfrog and was referenced in the 1855 epic poem "The Song of Hiawatha" by Henry Wadsworth Longfellow.

Fritz said guidance and financial support for the gathering has been

"We are trying to add a lot of events to bring history back, especially for young people," Fritz said. "With their help and some funding, we've found the right connection to make this happen."

Fritz said he would like to see the gathering become an annual event.

Rambling through central Illinois, doing my best to make it rain.

Hollywood packed up and left Elmwood on Saturday, not long after an enthusiastic crew of more than 60 extras helped bang pots and pans for a surreal ending to David Ferino's indie movie

"Wardcliffe." How many movie careers will that scene launch? We probably won't know for another 8-12 months, which is how long it will take to complete the movie according to producer Roger Mayer – that rarest of commodities, a likable Los Angelite. Said Mayer, "Making movies ain't easy." ... Informal invites have been made to Ferino and Mayer for some sort of red-carpet premiere at Elmwood's Palace Theatre once "Wardcliffe" is completed. While there is some nudity and cursing in the movie, which will likely be rated R, that shouldn't be a problem. It occurs to me there is cursing and nudity in every town, even Elmwood.

U.S. Rep. Darin LaHood will be back in Elmwood on June 29, which is rather ironic since we still haven't seen hide nor hair of our actual representative, Eric Sorensen, who is no doubt planning a visit soon. LaHood will be here to help unveil plans for the proposed Community Wellness Center north of town. That the center may actually become a reality is due in part to LaHood helping find a $3.75 million grant for the facility. That money plus a $1 million pledge from Graham Medical Group CEO Bob Senneff really kickstarted the fundraising drive. You are invited to come out and learn more on June 29 at Graham Medical Group at 10 a.m. There will be more donor news to announce, plans for the future and, hey, there will definitely be people willing and able to take your $1 million donation that day. ... Speaking of Sorensen, it doesn't encourage much confidence to hear a Congressman start sentences with the phrase, "When I was a TV meteorologist." Might as well say, "Last time I made a completely incorrect prediction..."

Hopes for a positive update on Brimfield resident Logan Dunne's situation have not come to fruition. As of Tuesday, the family has been unable to locate Logan, a diabetic who left Carle Health Methodist Hospital in Peoria on June 2 and has been missing ever since. His parents, Brian and Heather Dunne, have an ad on the facing page in which they thank all those who helped search for their son. They also pledge to continue looking for Logan until he is found. For those interested, regular updates are being posted on the Find Logan Dunne Facebook page.

shortly thereafter. That always pleased my farmer grandfathers immensely. "You brought the rain!" they would say.

That's one of many times I realized one of life's joys is being hugged and praised for something you really didn't earn. But I seem to have lost my skill at making it rain and we need some rain-bringing visitors to show up soon here in central Illinois.

Prairie plants, those deep-rooted natives that can make it through super dry weather, are even showing the signs of our growing drought. And unlike normal years, the prairie is shorter this spring, clumpier, with open spaces in spots normally filled with vegetation.

This is good for the quail, pheasants, turkeys and other critters feeding on insects, I am told. Even so, it is worrisome.

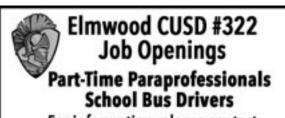

Also worrisome are the bare-root trees and saplings planted this spring. Nearly all of them got three good rains and had a fine start. Some are dying now, others wilting and showing signs of stress.

And as of last weekend, the concerns of local farmers have started to become more pronounced.

Parting shot: There's nothing we can do to make it rain, of course, not that such a fact will stop us from trying. Most in our office are similarly superstitious. Cars are being washed ... windows left open ... boats put out with no cover ... all to no avail. Ahh, but perhaps a planned camping trip this weekend will do the trick.

The curious case of Cow 6111, Part 1

Calving season 2023 ended on May 15, two days short of three months after it had begun, with the birth of a beautiful silver-and-white heifer. It is always a relief to be able to get a full night's sleep after checking cows at all hours for so many weeks. We were scheduled to vaccinate cows and calves the next two days, so this was a particularly timely birth.

To be honest, we did have an older Angus cow who had not yet calved, despite having been declared bred when we pregnancy checked the herd at the end of November. It is not uncommon for a cow to suffer a miscarriage, however, and we are seldom aware of it when it does happen. We all agreed that 6111 did not look pregnant, but we would have the vet check her when she went through the chute to receive her annual vaccinations, just to be sure.

On the day we worked the cattle here at home we identified the pretty little silver heifer as the last calf when Dr. Iliff commented on her newness. Soon Matt brought 6111 into the chute and said, "We need to preg-check this one. We don't think she's going to have a calf."

Dr. Iliff looked her over, gave a half-shake of his head as he hmmmed in a nothopeful tone and then sang his trademark jingle for open cows: "Two all-beef patties, special sauce..."

The examination had barely begun when the song ended abruptly. Dr. Iliff looked at Matt with a surprised expression.

"She's nine months and holding," he said somewhat incredulously.

And just like that, we were no longer done with calving. After our very brief respite, the watching and waiting would resume.

The last possible day this cow could have a calf was the first day of June, based on the day AJ and Matt had pulled the bulls. We proceeded to monitor her excessively. To some degree we had all three lost confidence in our ability to predict an impending birth. Even knowing the cow was pregnant, we didn't think she looked

The weather had turned unusually hot, so 6111 spent her days in the cool gloom of the east barn, eating as much hay as she could get Matt to give her. Collectively we must have looked at her dozens of times each day. We convinced ourselves that she was beginning to look a bit like a cow that might actually have a calf someday. Then on Memorial Day afternoon Matt noticed some discharge. We went to a family gathering, expecting to come home to a new calf.

We were only gone a few hours, and Matt had looked in on her, but when we arrived home and went immediately to the barn, we saw... nothing. Well, we saw the cow eating hay, but nothing to indicate she was trying to have a calf.

By the next day we were beginning to get concerned. Experience has taught us that if a calf is in breach position, labor does not progress. AJ decided to check her. I had just returned home from an appointment and was checking email when I noticed what I thought was one of our Angus bulls running down the driveway toward the road.

By the time I hit the door AJ went flying by it in the RTV, got it turned around and headed back toward the barns. As the animal trotted by me I realized it was not a bull but our 6111 cow. As I flanked her to keep her from running into the north field, I saw the working chute lying on its side several vards from the barn. None of this made sense.

Once we got 6111 back into the lot, I got the story. AJ had put her into the chute to check her, but evidently had not closed the little side door. Instead of sticking her head into the catch, she had reversed direction and then tried to exit through the little door. She didn't quite fit, however, and panicked. The end result was her dragging the chute until she pulled free, toppling it in the process. I admonished AJ for not waiting for someone to help him get the cow in, but this was met with ... well, let's just say we were all stressed by this situation. None of it made any sense.

When I went out at first light on Wednesday, 6111 was behind the barn. She had been mooing since before daybreak. I walked out to get a close look at her. She walked purposefully right up to me and stood expectantly. Or not expectantly at all. She really, really did not look pregnant. This did not make sense.

Matt came to chore and then hauled a couple cows to the Other Place. AJ came back in the house to reheat his abandoned coffee, then stuck his head around the corner to where I was doing bookwork at the old roll-top desk.

"Did you see the new calf?" he asked nonchalantly. It was a rhetorical question. He knew I had not.

Brimfield board discusses police coverage

By LORI HEROLD

For The Weekly Post BRIMFIELD - Contracted police protection in Brimfield was a topic of conversation at the June 12 meeting of the Village Board.

Village Attorney Rick Johnson noted during the meeting that the proposed tax levy would include an amount of $21,000 that could be used to offset the cost of contracted police coverage in the village.

Board President Dan Fishel said the board has until its September meeting to decide about the tax Nathan Schaub was present to be sworn in as a new board member, replacing Paul Dye.

A village-wide clean-up day was scheduled for July 29 from 8-11 a.m. at the Village Hall. Dumpsters will be available and a board member will be there to supervise.

Kevin Challacombe, supervisor of public works, asked if there could be an electronics recycling option. Village Clerk Holly Johnson and Schaub said they would look into that possibility.

Fishel, Rod Gilles and Joe Arbogast met with the Rural Route 150 Water District regarding a nonbinding proposal about Brimfield extending its water lines to the east. No other information was offered at the meeting.

The board approved two donations. One will go to the Elmwood-area fireworks display in the amount of $1,000. A motion made by Board Member Brian Porter was passed to donate $1,600, part of the village budget allocated to the Brimfield Youth Baseball Association now that Porter would no longer be the coordinator of the league and the village is no longer going to be a sponsor.

The board also approved to budget Brimfield's Community Day in an amount not to exceed $600. The Community Day will take place in the Village Park on Sunday, June 25.

Board Member Allison Porter said there are three vendors that have been attending the Farmers Market, which is set up in the Village Hall park on Tuesdays from 5-7 p.m. The Farmers Market began June 6.

The board also heard that the Miller building on Knoxville Street won't be demolished, at least for now. The owners, who want to preserve the building for a future business, are repairing the building and have cooperated with the board.

Fishel and Trustee Mike Meinders have agreed to meet with a property owner on East Calhoun Street regarding some complaints about a vehicle-repair business at a residence, resulting in multiple vehicles, noise and other possible ordinance violations.

The village will be installing new speed-limit signs along North Jefferson Street in a few weeks. The village is looking into costs associated with having an electronic speed sensor placed there as well. The hope is to reduce speed along that road.

Allison Porter said a few areas in town need attention. One is a building located on U.S. Route 150 near the car wash. She also asked for a quote to replace a broken baby swing in the village park.

Challacombe said sealcoating was to take place on June 13. Fishel thanked Johnson, Challacombe and Matt Sollenberger for keeping village work going well and on schedule.

Elmwood OKs new fire alarms for school

By JEFF LAMPE

For The Weekly Post

ELMWOOD – Last February, a fire alarm went off in the Elmwood schools. The source of that alarm, however, proved elusive.

While the cause was later found to be a student vaping in a bathroom near the cafeteria, that was determined after students in the elementary school were evacuated, fire doors came down in the cafeteria during lunch and administrators and maintenance staff spent a few panicked minutes scrambling to pinpoint the source.

"We didn't know what to do that day because we didn't know what was wrong," Superintendent Chad Wagner said.

After Monday night's school board meeting, that should no longer be a problem. The board voted unanimously to spend $80,000 in Health Life Safety Funds to pay for an upgraded fire alarm system from Heart.

With the new system, administrators will be able to quickly pinpoint the source of an alarm and make decision on how best to proceed.

"It's a much-needed feature since we've added on to the school and kind of cobbled things together," Wagner said.

As part of the expense, rooms in the grade school will also have smoke detectors installed. Currently there are just two smoke detectors in the grade school.

The board also approved the student/parent handbook and ISBE PRESS updates.

The building and grounds committee heard three proposals for a possible solar array that would be located on 1.75 acres northeast of the school. That committee is expected to hear more presentations before making a recommendation to the board, according to Board President Mark Davis.

Wagner discussed a project to install stone pavers to honor donors to the new Claude Keefer Industrial Arts Building. Wagner said he will have more information at the next meeting.

In other business, the board approved several hirings:

• Haylie Bishop and Kate Anderson as elementary school paraprofes-sionals at a salary of $15 per hour.

- Tyler Baysingar as high school athletic director at a salary of $6,000.
- Lauren Stephens as junior high assistant volleyball coach, Jared Harkness as JH boys cross country coach and Layne Hampton as basketball cheerleading coach.

Also approved were the following volunteer coaches: JH baseball -John Baysingar and Cale Thompson; JH softball – Erin Funk; JH Lego league - Dustin Funk; JH volleyball Karla Begner; JH girls basketball – Steve Herridge; JH cheerleading -Nicole Briney and Kathleen Conklin; 5th-6th grade basketball – Grant Strom; HS golf – Kenny Blum, Dianne Burwell, Tom Conklin and Brett Powers; HS boys cross country - Tom Gorham, Cooper Hoffmann and Mike Sullivan; HS football -Tommy Bowers, Kevin Faulkner, Mike Walker and Noah Hollis; HS trap - Kevin Brugger and Chris Milliman; HS spirit squad – Hampton; HS track – Sullivan and Hoffmann; HS marching band – Eric Yarbrough.

PUBLIC RECORD

NOTE: Charges are merely an accusation. All suspects are presumed innocent until proven guilty in a court of law.

Police Reports

• BRIMFIELD – A Peoria man claimed another driver ran him off a road northwest of Brimfield.

Shortly after 5 p.m. June 6, Charles A. Morris was driving a 2016 Nissan Altima south on Illinois Route 78 near Peoria-Galesburg Trail when the other driver began to follow him closely, according to a Peoria County Sheriff's Office report.

Looking through the rearview mirror, Davis said he could see the driver yelling and making obscene hand gestures. Morris ended up driving into a ditch southwest of the Peoria-Galesburg intersection, the report stated.

Morris didn't know whether the other vehicle hit his.

Morris said the other vehicle was brown and driven by a white male with brown hair and a brown beard. A deputy saw no evidence of a twovehicle collision but did note damage to the Altima driver's-side mirror and front bumper. The mirror struck a telephone pole, according to the report.

• WEST PEORIA – An Elmwood man admitted fault in a parking-lot collision in West Peoria.

PRINCEVILLE: Ways to secure buses discussed

"If we're going to be waiting all day for an Ameren quote, it wouldn't hurt to have somebody else look at it," Board Vice President Michael Harmon said.

Also possible is an estimate for burying the electrical lines that would power the lights. That entails a separate contractor, according to Duling.

Board members have balked at potentially more-expensive security options, including a fence and a garage. But they suggested converters on district buses be equipped with antitheft devices. Some devices are cage-like, with hard-to-cut cables running through the frame.

The devices cost about $700, according to Duling, and are difficult to find, given the frequency of converter thefts nationwide. Thieves seek platinum and other rare materials from which converters are made.

Duling and Harmon said Paul Cokel, the owner of Cokel's Muffler Bay in Princeville, might be able to fashion less-expensive devices. Cokel is investigating, Duling said.

For now, district buses are being parked at Princeville Grade School instead of at the usual open-air storage facility on the west edge of town.

"It's in town, so there are a lot of people around all the time," Duling said about the grade-school site. "It's a lot more monitored."

Duling also reported impending retirements of two district employees – teacher Lisa Twidwell, effective following the 2025-26 academic year, and custodian George Knowles, effective Jan. 1. Resignations included Kayla Emerick as a part-time speech and language teacher, and Cody Blunier as sophomore-class sponsor.

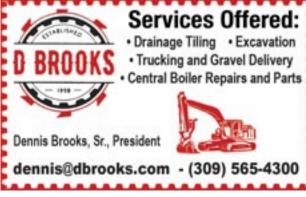

Regarding action items, board members:

• OK'd an amended budget for the 2023 fiscal year, which ends June 30. Revenues were estimated at $10,599,514, and expenses were estimated at $10,734,212. The estimated fund balance is to be $5.871,286.

- Authorized increasing the prices of activity passes to $45 for individuals and $90 for families, up from $35 and $70, respectively. Duling said the lower rates had been in effect for years.
- Affirmed Heather Lied as juniorclass co-sponsor, Bill Phelps and Blunier as sophomore-class co-sponsors and Michele Haste as a sophomore-class sponsor.
- Approved Linda King as a daycare/Migrant Head Start teacher, Cynthia Robbins as a custodian and Pam Fritzenmeier as an aide.

The board meeting was the final one at Princeville for Duling, whose 12-year run as superintendent ends June 30. Current Brimfield Superintendent Tony Shinall is to succeed Duling, effective July 1. Starting in 2023-24, Duling is to be superintendent of the Petersburg-based PORTA district.

DROUGHT:Stream flows at record low

Stock ponds are also low, as are stream flows – including some stretches of the Illinois and Kankakee rivers that are at record lows for this time of year.

And Ford said fruit and vegetable growers have been forced to spend extra money on irrigation.

"Ecologically we're seeing stressed trees; even the mature medium-sized trees are showing stress," Ford said, noting that river birches are starting to drop leaves already.

Other impacts have been early dormancy for lawns, which typically doesn't happen until July, and higher risk of fire throughout the state.

Ford says precipitation has been well below normal since May 1, with the northern half of the state at less than 25 percent average for this time of year.

Since receiving 1.83 inches of rain through May, Peoria has only received 0.23 inches of rain in June. Going back to April 1, Peoria has only received 4.41 inches of rain – 6.40 inches below average for the same period. This makes this the eighth driest April 1 through June 19 on record.

"If we are as dry in the next three to four weeks as we have been in the last three to four weeks, then we will start to see those extreme impacts," Ford said

He said a key period for farmers will be the pollination phase for corn, which is typically in July. No rain then will have significant impact on yields, Ford said.

Sticky plants annoying, but did inspire Velcro

By RON DIETER

For The Weekly Post

Whenever I take a hike in the woods, I hardly ever come back alone. There's usually a herd of hitchhikers attached to my pant legs and socks. And they get tangled up in the hair of Dutch, my faithful canine companion.

The sticky little devils are impossible to brush off and must be harvested by hand, a time-consuming job for which there are no shortcuts.

These annoying little burs are the seed transportation and relocation mechanisms of several common Illinois weeds. Examine them closely and you'll see they are covered with tiny little curved hooks designed to attach themselves to the fur and feathers of unsuspecting animals and birds.

One such bearer of bothersome burs in my woods is Gallium aparine. You might know it as sticky willy, catchweed or cleavers. Another common name for this weed is bedstraw. Back in the day, folks in Europe used a species of Gallium as mattress stuffing.

I can imagine Sven and Lena, having just cleared the garden, staring at a pile of sticky willy, wondering what to do with it.

Sven says, "Lena, I got an idea. There's plenty of it and it's free for the taking and after all, you gotta stuff a mattress with something. Whadya tink?"

Sticky willy is incredibly sticky. It has those little hooks all over – on the burs, stems and leaves. The whole plant will grab you if you give it a chance. When you try to clear out a bunch it'll even cling to the hairs on your skin.

The flimsy stems of sticky willy can grow as long as 6 feet. Too weak to stand on their own, they drape over neighboring plants or grow low to the ground. Heavy infestations can get tangled in farm crops and harvesting machinery.

Bedstraw is an annual weed and needs to be removed in the spring before it produces seed. A single plant can yield nearly 400 seeds, so early removal is crucial.

Be careful when pulling it up, since desired plants may be caught in the tangles. The stems are weakly attached to the roots so it's difficult to remove the root with the weed. But don't worry. Since the plant lives for only one season and the seeds remain viable in the soil for just a year or two, you can eliminate it if you're persistent.

As bothersome as bedstraw is, it doesn't hold a candle to Virginia stickseed, Hackelia virginiana.

Stickseed is a biennial, growing as a low rosette the first year. Reappearing the next year, it grows up to four feet tall. In mid-summer it's topped off with horizontal stems each bearing a single row of extremely sticky seedpods.

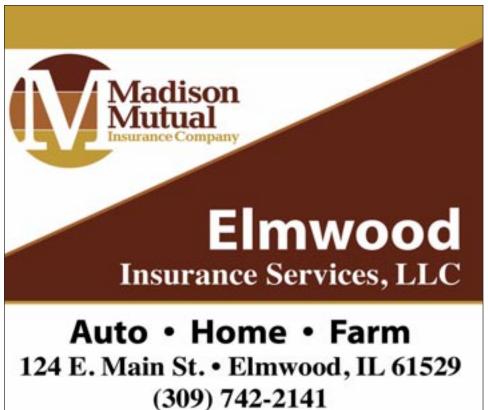

Stickseed is a real nuisance to anyone passing by. A whole row of seeds with stem attached often attaches to your sweatshirt or pants. When you try to remove the whole thing by pulling away the stem, it breaks away leaving the row of burs to be picked off one at a time.

Handpicking is the only way to remove them. A trip through the washer and dryer only fastens them more securely. What a pain. Thankfully Dutch is a short-haired dog.

Birds can sometimes fall prey to stickweed. The immature seedpods are held tight to the stem and are already very sticky. Birds attempting to perch on the horizontal stems can get snagged by the pods and held captive.

Burdock and cocklebur, of course, are probably the most famous of the sticky plants. The hooks on their burs are easily seen. Swiss inventor George de Mestral, inspired by the cocklebur, created the Velcro hookand-loop fastener system. His hookand-loop system has replaced zippers, shoe laces and belts.

Note that George invented the application. It was Mother Nature who invented the concept.

Second pipeline seeks approval from Illinois

By JEFF LAMPE

For The Weekly Post SPRINGFIELD – Wolf Carbon Solutions U.S. last Friday filed a petition with the Illinois Commerce Commission to build a CO2 pipeline that will pass through Illinois.

Wolf Carbon is the second company seeking to build a CO2 pipeline that will cross the state, joining an earlier petition from Navigator CO2.

Wolf's proposed 260mile pipeline would transport CO2 from ethanol plants in Cedar Rapids and Clinton, Iowa, across parts of DeWitt, Henry, Logan, Macon, Peoria, Rock Island, Stark and Tazewell counties in Illinois.

The terminus of the pipeline is a sequestration site east of Decatur, where CO2 would be stored in the Mount Simon Sandstone geological formation. Archer Daniels Midland is working with Wolf on the proposed pipeline and has been storing CO2 east in Decatur north of its plant there.

"Our role in this project would be to supply CO2 from our facilities in Clinton and Cedar Rapids, Iowa, as well as expand our injection and storage site in Decatur, while Wolf would build, own and operate the pipeline," said Jackie Anderson, an ADM spokesperson. "Over the last decade, we've demonstrated that CO2 can be injected safely and permanently into the Mount Simon sandstone more than a mile under the earth's surface"

A spur of the pipeline that is to run through the south side of Peoria was not included on the ICC filing, according to a press release from the Coalition to Stop CO2 Pipelines.

"ADM/Wolf appears to be doing everything possible to fast track this project – from suddenly taking the controversial spur through Peoria's south side off the map 'for now,' to publicly promising to meet yet-to-be-drafted federal CO2 pipeline safety regulations," said Tracy Fox of the Central Illinois Healthy Community Alliance and the Coalition to Stop CO2 Pipelines.

Hog-market losses rival 1998

By DANIEL GRANT

FarmWeek

U.S. hog farmers endured severe market losses in recent months and it appears the bleeding will continue.

Steve Meyer, economist with Partners for Production Agriculture, projects a bleak market outlook in the months ahead that could equal or even surpass losses suffered during the historic hog-market collapse of 1998.

"We don't have a lot of upside potential in my models at this point," Meyer said. "It is a very serious situation."

Lean hog prices since the first of the year plunged from highs near $120 per hundredweight down into the mid-$70s, although a modest rally pushed hog prices to $82.57 by June 1.

The steep drop in hog prices combined with high input costs created losses of about $48 per head in April, based on the Iowa State University estimated costs and returns, Meyer

He projects losses could ease but still hover around $30 per head for much of the rest of the year.

"That puts us in a very bad situation economically," Meyer said. "According to my calculations, it's likely this year ends up worse than 1998."

Hog farmers lost an estimated $2.6 billion in 1998 based on an average loss of $28 per head. Cash hog prices bottomed at around $8 per hundredweight during that economic disaster.

Many analysts attribute the price collapse of 1998, which squeezed thousands of hog farmers out of business, primarily to faltering demand for hogs due to significant cuts in packer capacity. Hog capacity declined about 8% while production increased 10%.

This time, a sizable drop in demand is the main culprit behind the severe economic losses on hog farms. It likely will lead to a significant cut in pork production over time, according to Meyer.

The CME Group's Daily Livestock Report also pointed to poor demand as a key factor.

Some retailers began discounting pork prices at some locations in recent weeks as a result.

"The industry is going to get smaller the next two to three years," said Meyer, noting Smithfield is reportedly reducing its sow herd.

This story was distributed through a cooperative project between Illinois Farm Bureau and the Illinois Press Association. For more food and farming news, visit FarmWeekNow.com.

OBITUARIES

UMKC. He returned to St. Joseph to teach English at Benton High School. During his time at Benton, Tom taught hundreds of students, coached cross country, and most importantly, met the love of his life, a fellow teacher just down the hall, Cathy Gallagher.

Tom and Cathy's courtship took them on a Northwest Alumni trip to Switzerland in 1976. On Chapel Bridge over the River Reuss, Tom proposed. One year later on June 11, 1977, Tom and Cathy married. Soon after, they became active members in what would become their permanent parish home, St. Francis Xavier. There Tom served as a lector, parish council member and president, and was one of the first covenanted members of the Companions of the Precious Blood.

Tom and Cathy were blessed with five children: Julia (1978), James (1980), Mary (1985), Melanie (1989) and Christopher (1991). Their home was not only full of children. Tom's kind and gentle heart could never say no to the endless stream of needy creatures he and Cathy would bring home.

After spending 30+ years at Benton, Tom retired and moved to Missouri Western State University where he continued to teach English for the next decade.

One of Tom's many passions was traveling. According to one of Tom's many journal entries, his idea of happiness was being lost in Europe on a cobblestone street with his wife.

Tom was an avid reader, writer, and scholar. He surrounded himself in his home with books, journals, and items that held memories close to his heart.

Tom's other big passion was the Prairie Lands Writing Project. He was a mentor to writing teachers all over the region.

His retirement brought him the joy of grandchildren and allowed him the time to serve others through the Open Door Food Kitchen and the House of Bread.

Tom was preceded in death by his parents, Francis and Josephine, as well as twin brothers, John and Jo-

Source of Drinking Water

The sources of drinking water (both tap water and bottled water) include rivers, lakes, streams, ponds, reservoirs, springs, and wells. As water travels over the surface of the land or through the ground, it dissolves naturally-occurring minerals and, in some cases, radioactive material, and can pick up substances resulting from the presence of animals or from human activity.

Contaminants that may be present in source water include: Microbial contaminants, such as viruses and bacteria, which may come from sewage treatment plants, septic systems, agricultural livestock operations and wildlife.

Inorganic contaminants, such as salts and metals, which can be naturally occurring or result from urban storm water runoff, industrial, or domestic wastewater discharges, oil and gas production, mining, or farming.

Pesticides and herbicides, which may come from a variety of sources such as agriculture, urban storm water runoff, and residential uses.

Organic chemical contaminants, including synthetic and volatile organic chemicals, which are by-products of industrial processes and petroleum production, and can also come from gas stations, urban storm water runoff, and septic systems.

Radioactive contaminants, which can be naturally occurring or be the result of oil and gas production and mining activities.

Drinking water, including bottled water, may reasonably be expected to contain at least small amounts of some contaminants. The presence of contaminants does not necessarily indicate that water poses a health risk. More information about contaminants and potential health effects can be obtained by calling the EPA's Safe Drinking Water Hotline at (800) 426-4791.

In order to ensure that tap water is safe to drink, EPA prescribes regulations which limit the amount of certain contaminants in water provided by public water systems. FDA regulations establish limits for contaminants in bottled water which must provide the same protection for public health.

Some people may be more vulnerable to contaminants in drinking water than the general population.

Immuno-compromised persons such as persons with cancer undergoing chemotherapy, persons who have undergone organ transplants, people with HIV/AIDS or other immune system disorders, some elderly and infants can be particularly at risk from infections. These people should seek advice about drinking water from their health care providers. EPA/CDC guidelines on appropriate means to lessen the risk of infection by Cryptosporidium and other microbial contaminants are available from the Safe Drinking Water Hotline (800) 426-4791.

If present, elevated levels of lead can cause serious health problems, especially for pregnant women and young children. Lead in drinking water is primarily from materials and components associated with service lines and home plumbing. We cannot control the variety of materials used in plumbing components. When your water has been sitting for several hours, you can minimize the potential for lead exposure by flushing your tap for 30 seconds to 2 minutes before using water for drinking or cooking. If you are concerned about lead in your water, you may wish to have your water tested. Information on lead in drinking water, testing methods and steps you can take to minimize exposure is available from the Safe Drinking Water Hotline or at http://www.epa.gov/safewater/lead.

Source Water Assessment

We want our valued customers to be informed about their water quality. If you would like to learn more, please feel welcome to attend any of our regularly scheduled meetings. The source water assessment for our supply has been completed by the Illinois EPA. If you would like a copy of this information, please stop by City Hall or call our water operator, 309-368-0009. To view a summary version of the completed Source Water Assessments, including: Importance of Source Water; Susceptibility to Contamination determination and documentation/recommendation of Source Water Protection Efforts, you may access the Illinois EPA website at http://www.epa.state.il.us/cgi-bin/wp/swap-fact-sheets.pl Source of Water: Williamsfield. To determine Wiliamsfield's susceptibility to groundwater contamination, information obtained during a Well Site Survey published in 1990 by the Illinois EPA, and Source Water Protection Plan were reviewed. Based on information contained in these documents, fourteen potential sources of groundwater contamination are present that could pose a hazard to groundwater pumped by the Williamsfield community water supply wells. these include Ferrol Gas, Spoon River FS, Farmhouse Gas Station, Sunoco Station, Hart Feed & Milling, Williamsfield Farmers Co-op, Na-Churs Plant Food Com-pany, Country Craft Ceramics, the Village of Williamsfield, Ingle Construction Co., Wheelhouse Lawn & Garden, Gas & Service Station, unknown machine shop, and Weavers Hardware. Based upon this information, the Illinois EPA has determined that Williamsfield Wells #2 and #3 are not susceptible to IOC, VOC or SOC contamination. This determination is based on a number of criteria including: monitoring conducted at the wells; monitoring conducted at the entry point to the distribution system; and the available hydrogeologic data for the wells. In anticipation of the U.S. EPA's proposed Ground Water Rule, the Illinois EPA has determined that Williamsfield's community water supply wells are not vulnerable to viral contamination. This determination is based upon the evaluation of the following criteria during the Vulneralability Waiver Process: the community's wells are properly constructed with sound integrity and proper site conditions; there is a hydrogeologic barrier that restricts pathogen movement; all potential routes and sanitary defects have been mitigated such that the source water is adequately protected; monitoring data did not indicate a history of disease outbreak; and the sanitary survey of the water supply did not indicate a viral contamination threat. However, having states this, the U.S. EPA is proposing to require States to identify systems in karst, gravel and fractured rock aquifer systems as sensitive. Water systems utilizing these aquifer types would be required to perform routine source water monitoring. Because the community's wells are constructed in a confined aquifer, which should provide an adequate degree of protection to prevent the movement of pathogens into the wells, well hydraulics were not considered to be a significant factor in the vulnerability determination.

Definitions:

Action Level Goal (AGL): The level of a contaminant in drinking water below which there is no known or expected risk to health. ALG's allow for a margin of safety.

Action Level: The concentration of a contaminant which, if exceeded, triggers treatment or other requirements which a water system must follow.

Water Quality Test Results

Definitions: The following tabes contain scientific terms and measures, some of which may require explanation.

Avg: Regulatory compliance with some MCLs are based on running annual average of monthly samples.

Level 1 assessment is a study of the water system to identify potential problems and determine (if possible) why total coliform bacteria have been found in our water system.

Level 2 Assessment: A Level 2 assessment is a very detailed study of the water system to identify potential problems and determine (if possible) why an E. coli MCL violation has occured and/or why total coliform bacteria have been found in our water system on multiple occasions.

Maximum Contaminant Level or MCL: The highest level of a contaminant that is allowed in drinking water. MCLs are set as close to the MCLGs as feasible using the best available treatment technology.

Maximum Contaminant Level Goal or MCLG: The level of a contaminant in drinking water below which there is known or expected risk to health. MCLGs allow for a margin of safety.

Maximum residual disinfectant level or MRDL: The highest level of a disinfectant allowed in drinking water. There is convincing evidence that addition of a disinfectant is necessary for control of microbial contents.

Maximum residual disinfectant level goal or MRDLG: The level of a drinking water disinfectant below which there is no known or expected risk to health. MRDLGs do not reflect the benefits of the use of disinfectants to control microbial contaminants.

na; not applicable. mrem: millirems per year (a measure of radiation absorbed by the body).

ppb: micrograms per liter or parts per billion - or one ounce in 7,350,000 gallons of water.

Illinois expands use of surveillance drones

By ANDREW ADAMS

Capitol News Illinois

CHICAGO – Next time you attend a parade, there might be an eye in the sky.

A new law signed by Gov. JB Pritzker on Friday expands local police departments' authority to use drones to surveil certain events, respond to certain 911 calls, inspect buildings and participate in public relations events.

House Bill 3902 passed 56-1 in the Senate and 84-7 in the House with three members voting "present." The law drew concerns from civil liberties groups, which ultimately led to added privacy protections and disclosure requirements.

The push to expand police drone authority originated after a 2019 mass shooting at the Henry Pratt Company in Aurora, according to the bill's House sponsor, Rep. Barbara Hernandez, D-Aurora. She and others received renewed calls after a 2022 shooting at a July 4 parade in Highland Park last year.

"I hope people are safe and that this can prevent anything else from happening," Hernandez said.

Kenny Winslow, executive director of the Illinois Association of Chiefs of Police, supported the measure and is already planning to offer training on the new law to police departments. He said drone technology could save lives and expects more departments to use them moving forward.

But he added that the protections contained in the bill – including requirements that police post notices if they are surveilling an event and keep a record of flight paths – were an important part of the final product.

"We're trying to be as transparent with the public as we can," Winslow said.

The ACLU of Illinois – a civil rights organization that has long been a voice of opposition to unrestricted drone use by police departments – took a neutral stance on the bill.

ACLU staff were key architects of a 2013 state law referred to as the Freedom from Drone Surveillance Act that placed significant restrictions on police drone

"Our concern is that this kind of technology can be used in fairly invasive ways that intrude on our constitutional and privacy rights," ACLU attorney Liza Roberson-Young told Capitol News Illinois.

These concerns led to some key protections in the bill, including limitations on what circumstances warrant the use of drones and how long the information collected by drones can be stored.

"We wouldn't want this to be a first step to a slippery slope to chipping away at the Freedom from Drone Surveillance Act," Roberson-Young said.

Under the new law, drones may only be used at outdoor, government-hosted events. These include events such as parades, walks, races, concerts or food festivals. These events must meet minimum-size requirements depending on the size of the municipality in which they are hosted.

The law explicitly bars drones from being used to monitor "any political protest, march, demonstration, or other assembly protected by the First Amendment."

The law also allows police to use drones when responding to 911 calls to find victims, to assist with health or safety needs or to coordinate emergency personnel.

Information collected using drones may only be stored temporarily and must be deleted within 24 hours after a parade or other special event and within 30 days for most other uses. There are exceptions where police may retain that information.

The Illinois Attorney
General's office can investigate police departments' patterns and practices of drone use and compel their compliance by seeking a court order. Departments can lose drone authority for at least six months the first time they are found to violate the law and up to one year for subsequent violations.

The law explicitly bans police from equipping drones with weapons.

The law also places significant restrictions on the use of facial recognition technology in conjunction with drones.

Some in the digital-rights world say that the law still leaves the door open for police to use other surveil-lance technologies that encroach on people's civil liberties.

Trap teams compete at state

By The Weekly Post

Brimfield and Elmwood high school trap teams took several shooters to the state tournament for the Illinois State High School Clay Target League, held June 3 in Bunker Hill.

Brimfield had 14 students at the tournament and the following students had the highest scores on the team in three different skill levels.

- Novice: Top female Tessa Bridson 68. Top male Cole Cox 78.
- Junior Varsity: Top male Logan Zinser 92.
- Varsity: Top male Jacob Avery 91. According to Coach Scott Avery, "Most of the students shot their personal-best scores at the state tournament during a 90+ degree day."

Avery also thanked his assistant coaches and the staff at the Elmwood Trap Club for allowing the team to shoot during the eight-week spring season.

"Having 26 students shoot 50 clay birds a week is very challenging and would not be possible without our awesome volunteer coaches who go above and beyond to maintain a safe shooting environment," Avery said.

Elmwood sent 11 shooters to state and had the following highest scores:

- Novice: Top female Addisyn Powers 76. Top male - Baron Case 65.
- Junior Varsity: Top male Mason Geeseman 86.
- Steamboat Elmwood-Brimfield cross country was well-represented at Saturday's 49th annual Steamboat Classic race in Peoria.

In the 4-mile race, Isaiah Hill of E-B was 6th in 21:04 while Bradley grad
